REPORT TRADE ON UPTREND IN LAKE REGION

Pendulum Swinging Upward in Toledo and Other Cities, Is Report.

REGARDED AS BAROMETER

Reports at Advisory Board Session in Toledo Watched by Nation's Business Heads.

By United Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 24—The pendulum of business in Toledo and other large industrial cities in the Great Lakes area has reached its lowest point and the upward swing already under way will reach greater heights in the three remaining months of 1930.

This was evidenced in early reports of business leaders throughout the entire Great Lakes region at the 28th regular session of the Great Lakes Regional advisory board here today.

While reports indicated some decrease in traffic during the last quarter compared with the same period in 1929, decided optimism was prevalent.

Grain Shipments Higher

A decided increase will be shown in the shipment of grain and grain products the remainder of the year compared with the last quarter of 1929, William E. Maloney, traffic commissioner of the Buffalo Corn Exchange and chairman of the grain committee of the advisory board, reported. These shipments will aggregate 70,000 carloads compared with 55,459 last year, Maloney reported.

A definite index of an upward trend in general business is embodied in the report of Fred J. Parker, vice president of the First National bank of Detroit, Mich., chairman of the board's bankers' committee. He said inventories are low and replacements must come on.

"When these replacements come," Parker said, "I believe that buying will be in sufficient volume to bring about a change in conditions."

Steel Industry Optimistic

In bearing out the statements of Parker, the steel industry is particularly optimistic. William M. Lorenz, traffic manager of the Otis Steel Co., reported that while estimated car requirements for the last quarter show a slight decrease compared with the 1929 period, it is believed the closing months will show a decided upward trend in steel production.

Several hundred business leaders from the entire area abutting the Great Lakes are attending the meeting, which is watched by business leaders throughout the nation. Reports of these sessions are considered a good barometer for business because of the accuracy of estimates.

JONES ADVANCES IN QUEST FOR CROWN

Defeats Canadian Amateur Champ 5 Up and 4 To Play.

By International News Service

MERION CRICKET CLUB, SOUTH ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 24—Bobby Jones, seeking his fourth championship of the year by way of establishing a record that no other man has known, won his first round match in the National amateur golf championship this morning from C. Ross Somerville, Canadian champion. The score was 5 up and 4 to play, the Canadian failing to win a single hole before the twelfth. The matter, in fact, was largely taken out of his hands by Jones himself, who shot a clinking 33 to the turn.

This match, to all practical purposes, was decided at the seventh, eighth and ninth holes, where Jones sank a succession of putts for birdies.

Von Elm Victor

Meantime, George Van Elm, another ex-champion of the amateur, also shot a 33 to the turn to beat "Chuck" Hunter, former coast man, by 6 and 5. George Voight won from Lester Bolstad, Minneapolis, by 2 and 1. Another winner was Charles Reckner, Philadelphia, who beat his fellow-townsman, Woody Platt, by 3 and 2.

The most sensational winner of the day was Lawson Little, San Francisco, who ran Dr. O. F. Willing, last year's finalist, right out of the tournament at the twentieth hole.

This match went into extra holes only because the ubiquitous Little wafted in a 10-foot putt on the home green for a 4, the performance leaving Willing a 5 footer for a half. The doctor proved that he was a good, game guy by setting this putt down but, at the twentieth, he three-putted to take a losing 6 and the match was over.

Girl's Venture Results in Cheap Ocean Voyage

By United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—Miss Julia Green Nelson, pretty 22-year-old San Francisco nurse who boarded the liner Pennsylvania with $2 and a powder compact, arrived here with her passage paid, first class.

Miss Nelson went on board the Pennsylvania at San Francisco and sat down in a deck chair. After 24 hours at sea she felt something ought to be done about a meal. She made known her presence to the captain who put her to work rolling bandages in the ship's hospital. A wealthy passenger heard of the incident and paid her passage. Women passengers furnished her with a wardrobe for the trip.

WHEAT PROBES READY TO OPEN

Three Separate Investigations Given Impetus as Hyde Returns.

SURVEY TO BE THOROUGH

Department of Agriculture To Go Into All Transactions of Russians.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—Three separate investigations of the Russian government's speculative wheat transactions in the Chicago pit sought fresh impetus today through the return to the capital of Secretary Hyde.

The department of agriculture was to push its survey of the Russian wheat operations in this country to cover all transactions, possibly extending back over a period of months.

Chicago board of trade officials awaited Secretary Hyde's data before proceeding with their examination of the transactions.

Plans were all laid, meanwhile, for the investigation by the house Communist committee, of which Representative Fish of New York is chairman.

In New York Saturday the committee will hear the officials of the All-Russia textile syndicate which sold the wheat short and representatives of New York brokerage houses which placed the orders. The following Monday the committee will sit in Chicago to question officers of the board of trade.

Hyde's return from a trip to Ann Arbor, Mich., cut short a trip which it had been expected might extend to Chicago for personal conference with the board of trade officials. He returned to Washington instead to maintain a close watch on developments.

A legitimate proposal to prohibit speculation on short trading in the commodities on American exchanges by the Russian government and its agencies was advanced yesterday by Senator Oddie, Republican, of Nevada.

Gray and Daugherty Before Grand Jury

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON C. H., Sept. 24—The Fayette county grand jury resumed sessions today in its investigation of the closing of the Ohio and Peoples & Drovers banks here last summer. State Superintendent of Banks O. C. Gray was the first witness called.

Mal S. Daugherty former president of the Ohio State bank, followed.

The grand jury will adjourn for a week following today's session, if its present plans are carried out.

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR HOME BUILDING HELP

Convenes Committee To Devise Program; Sees Need of Easier Financing.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—President Hoover today assembled a group of prominent bankers, trust company officials, insurance executives and builders at the White House into a planning committee for an early national conference on home building.

Addressing the group in the cabinet room, the President called their attention to existing difficulties experienced by citizens in financing home building, and the problem of creating home areas adjacent to industrial sections.

"We still lag far behind our national ideal of homes for all our people," the President said.

"Adequate housing," he continued, "goes to the very root of the well being of the families, and the family is the social unit of the nation.

"The financing of home building, especially for second mortgages, is the most backward element of our credit system. It is easier to borrow 85 per cent on an automobile and repay it on the installment plan than to buy a home on that basis—and generally the note required a higher interest rate.

"The home process of purchase and finance involves a ceremony like treaties between governments and yet the home is certainly as good collateral as an automobile; it depreciates more slowly, if at all, and its owner will make a harder fight to keep it.

"The home has tentacles of sentiment as well as bonds of necessity that binds the occupants to it.

"Part of the difficulties lie in inadequate financial organization and part in obsolete laws."

Speakeasy Owner Says He Paid Canton Police

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 24—Tony Kalaros, Canton speakeasy operator, testified in federal court today during the second trial of those indicted in the cleanup of the Canton underworld, that he paid $50 a week to keep his place from being raided by the police.

He said he paid the money to John Gust, alleged Canton bootlegger and "go-between" for Ellis Daranty, former Canton police sergeant. Daranty and Gust, along with Mike Smith, another alleged Canton bootlegger, are on trial charged with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law. The trial started this morning before a jury of eight men and four women.

EXPLOSION OF AUTO KILLS AKRON MAN

Mysterious Blast Puzzles Police; May Have Been Time Bomb.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Sept. 24—The mysterious explosion of an automobile in which Clarence R. Barnes, 43 Akron salesman, was killed puzzled police today.

Barnes was driving toward home last night in a car which he had borrowed from a roomer at his home when the machine was demolished by an explosion. The salesman was hurled 40 feet into a field and died a short time later at city hospital while awaiting amputation of his left leg.

Detectives hazarded a theory that the explosion originated in the gasoline tank under the seat, but could not determine the cause. They said the fact that Barnes had driven about 10 miles before the blast precluded the possibility that a time bomb or dynamite had been planted in the car.

Barnes, before losing consciousness, was unable to explain the explosion. Police said they were unable to find that he had any enemies.

BEFORE STATE COURT

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24—The state supreme court today took under advisement the mandamus suit filed by the so-called Citizens' party of Cincinnati, seeking to compel Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to permit the group to appear on the ballot in the November election with a circle above the column for straight voting. An early decision was indicated.

SITES STARTS FIGHT FOR LIFE; STATE RESTS

McCartney Called to Stand for Defense; Case Nears End at Bucyrus.

MAY GO TO JURY TODAY

Prosecution Attempts To Show Defendant Fired One Shot at Wilcox.

Special To The Star

COURTROOM, BUCYRUS, O., Sept. 24—Earl Sites this afternoon was to begin his battle to escape the electric chair, the fate which has been meted out to his two alleged companions the night of the fatal shooting of Ralph Wilcox at Galion, after the state rested its case at 11:15 a. m.

Moving at a faster pace than the trials of Fred Massa and Kenneth McCartney, it seemed probable that the jury would be charged with the case late today and that Sites would know his fate before Thursday noon.

The first defense witness of the three trials was to take the stand when court convened at 1 p. m. after the noon recess, taken immediately after the state completed its testimony. McCartney, who is in county jail awaiting hearing on a new trial motion after being found guilty of first degree murder last week, has been subpoenaed for the defense.

Claims Sites Shot

Prosecutor J. D. Sears through 12 witnesses placed on the stand Tuesday afternoon and this morning attempted to prove that Sites fired one of the shots which wounded Wilcox. Detailed testimony with numerous charts of the filling station showing where bullets struck the wall was introduced.

In his alleged confession Sites admitted entering the filling station with a gun, but denied firing a shot. Wilcox was wounded twice; once by a bullet that grazed his head and again by a shot that passed under his arm and into the spine. The latter bullet, the state claimed, was fired from a gun in Massa's hands and resulted in death while Sites is charged with shooting the other.

Conflicting testimony from the only two witnesses of the shooting, both women, was given this morning. Mrs. Alma Gledhill, who witnessed the robbery attempt from the porch of her home near Wilcox's filling station, said that Sites came out of the station with a gun in his hand. Mrs. Wilcox, widow of the slain man, testified that she did not see the defendant with a

UNABLE TO DECIDE ON PARTY PLATFORM

N. Y. Republicans Face Discord Regardless of Solution of Question.

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 24—With trouble threatened no matter what they decide, state Republican leaders were struggling today with the problem whether to get wet, dry or moist in the convention opening here tomorrow.

The extreme wets, led by Dr. Nicholas Murry Butler and former Senator James W. Wadworth, remained uncompromising in their demand for a wet candidate and a plank asking repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and the Women's Christian Temperance Union had not softened its threat to put a dry third party ticket in the field if the Republican gubernatorial candidate and the platform were not dry in every sense of the word.

And to add to the troubles of the leaders, there was a general belief that United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, believed first by many votes in the race for the nomination for governor, would not accept the nomination unless the platform coincided with his demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

One development, however, was a real comfort to the leaders. Fred A. Victor, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, surprised everybody by a statement that Mr. Tuttle deserved the "enthusiastic support of all right minded citizens" if he would agree to "respect, obey, enforce and defend the constitution."

ASK THOROUGH CANNON PROBE

Investigation of Bishop's "Moral Fitness" Sought by Accusers.

INQUIRY PLAN OUTLINED

Committee of 12 To Hold Hearing, Minister Indicates in Statement.

By United Press

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 24—Investigation of the moral fitness of Bishop James Cannon Jr., to occupy a position of leadership in the Methodist Episcopal church South, is the objective of the new formal movement against the militant divine, the Rev. Forest J. Prettyman told the United Press today.

Prettyman with the Rev. Costen J. Harrell and the Rev. J. T. Manson of Richmond, Va., and the Rev. I. P. Martin of Abingdon, Va., recently filed charges against Bishop Cannon with Bishop W. M. Ainsworth of Birmingham.

Explains Phrase

Prettyman explained today that he used the phrase "moral fitness" in its largest sense and not in the restricted popular meaning which connotes loose living. He promised a thorough investigation of all published reports against the bishop, who became especially prominent in 1928 as an outspoken opponent of the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

"This case will be a thorough investigation of all the published reports that may come to the attention of the committee," Rev. Prettyman said.

Prettyman explained that under church law Bishop Ainsworth now must appoint a committee of 12 elders of the church to investigate the Cannon charges. They would not be limited to allegations contained in the paper filed by Prettyman's group with Bishop Ainsworth but would have full authority in determining Cannon's fitness to occupy his high office.

To the letter of Bishop H. M. Dubois of Nashville, Tenn., published yesterday suggesting it might be for the good of all concerned for Cannon to relinquish his church office, Prettyman attributed the widest possible importance. He explained that for a fellow bishop, a co-leader of the Methodist Episcopal church, to state such an opinion is of extreme significance, since he was sure Bishop Dubois would not have written the letter without good grounds.

Prettyman is confident the information filed with Bishop Ainsworth is sufficient to justify convening the committee of 12, though he was unable to cite precedent because the case of Bishop Cannon is the first in this history of the church, he said, in which such drastic action has been taken.

YEARS OF HATE CLIMAXED BY TRAGIC DEATHS

Drama of Bitter Rivalry Found Back of Fatal Clash of Rail Executives.

LAST QUARREL MYSTERY

Secret Carried to Graves, Says Coroner, Giving Murder-Suicide Verdict.

By United Press

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 24—Maxwell C. Byers and Dudley G. Gray, who could not agree how they should operate the Western Maryland railway, will carry to their graves the secret of their last misunderstanding, Coroner Otto Reinhardt revealed today.

Gray, vice president of the road, shot and killed President Byers and then fatally wounded himself yesterday after a three-minute interview in Byers' office. There were no witnesses. Business associates said the men had disagreed frequently over railway policy.

Reinhardt took that view today, attributing Gray's mad act to a state of mind produced by brooding over ill-feeling between himself and Byers. After questioning Mrs. Katherine Gray today on her return from Columbus, O., Reinhardt said his investigation would stop with issuance of the verdict of murder and suicide. He then informed police that was the official status of the shooting. But he did not know what had passed between the men just before the shots were fired.

Gray "Nagged", Is Belief

"It is pretty evident," Reinhardt said, "that Byers did not hesitate to nag Gray. Gray must have brooded until he became obsessed with the idea the president was discriminating against him."

The story of hatred and jealous rivalry which embittered the lives of Gray and Byers, wealthy railroad executives, unfolded today before investigators seeking hidden details of the murder-suicide tragedy.

Police files contained a sordid record of the scene that took place in the president's chamber of the Western Maryland railroad offices yesterday, when President Byers was shot eight times and killed by Gray, the first vice president, who took his own life. It was in the 27-year background of the feud, as revealed by relatives and close associates of the men, that the real drama of the double shooting lay.

Those who worked with them knew Byers and Gray were enemies. They seldom spoke except in their necessary business contacts, and then tacitly. They were known to be opposed on matters of policy. The strained feeling between them revealed itself in directors' meetings and associates had long wondered what the outcome of their smoldering hostility would be.

Beginning of Trouble

Gray was 62 and had been with the road since 1913. Byers was 10 years his junior, had gone over to the Western Maryland from the Great Northern at about the same time, and had been promoted over Gray. They never had worked well together after that.

Their acquaintance had extended back to the year 1904, when Gray was a division freight agent for the Baltimore & Ohio and Byers was division engineer. As new opportunities came to them they separated and each followed his career successfully with first one road and the another, until finally they found themselves in the same office.

Gray, ultimately, became traffic vice president of the Western Maryland. Byers, who had been assistant to the president, had made such a favorable record that he was chosen for the presidency. It was then that Gray's hostility toward the younger executive, though well subdued, first began to show.

As a result of a disagreement, it

Powerful Ray Opens View Through Huge Structures of Steel, Is Report of Scientists

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—Three wise men from the east slipped a new pair of glasses onto the eyes of father science today and showed the venerable gentleman how he could peek through steel girders and battleship hulls with all the ease of a small boy gaping through a stereoscope.

The peeking has been made possible, the American Society for Steel treating was told, by use of radium's gamma ray—much the same sort of ray that gages the world radio and artificial suntan.

With the use of a bit of radium no larger than a .22 calibre bullet, engineers can put a photographic plate behind the girders of your apartment house and see that they are sound. Workmen can take pictures of locomotive wheels and determine if all is well within; and submarine crews can study vital points of their craft, for suspected weaknesses.

The innovation is the work of Robert F. Mehl, superintendent of the division of Physical metallurgy in the National Research laboratory, Washington, D. C., Gilbert E. Doan, assistant professor of metallurgy at Lehigh university, Bethlehem, Pa., and Charles A. Hewett, engineer of the naval research laboratory. The work was done under the auspices of the naval research laboratory.

Hitherto, the x-ray has been the sole means of such inspection for defects in metals, and there have been three notable disadvantages which the gamma ray of radium has overcome. The X-ray for example, with equipment generally available, cannot penetrate deeper than 3½ to 4 inches within reasonable time. Research experts of a large electric company have estimated it would cost $400,000 to develop an X-ray machine capable of penetrating this 20 inches reached by the radium gamma ray.

Mimes Score in First Production of Season

"The Second Daughter" Received Well by Large Audience at Central Junior Auditorium; Miss Jean DeWolfe, Newcomer in Little Theater Group, Makes Hit.

The Marion Mimes made an auspicious start in their second season when they presented "The Second Daughter" before a large audience last night at Central Junior High school. New names appeared on programs and new faces and voices added interest to the stage.

A well-chosen comedy was the type of play with which to open the year, judging from the applause last night as one good line after another went over the footlights and touched the funny-bone of the audience.

The playhouse group did themselves proud in putting across a performance that went over with a bang. Comments after the show were highly complimentary to the entire cast, to the direction of the play and the Mimes as a group.

Last night the production reached the degree of entertainment that a stranger dropping into the auditorium would have enjoyed the show as he would have enjoyed a play presented by professionals.

Miss DeWolfe Scores

Miss Jean De Wolfe in the leading role, was a vivacious petite and competent young woman in her part of a younger daughter whose every effort to gain the love her mother gives to the older daughter, and who always seems to do the wrong thing at the right time—except in the eyes of her father. Miss De Wolfe was charming as the second daughter, and is new talent in the Mimes.

The Mimes never selected a more efficient "sob-sister" than Mrs. C. G. Smith, the irritating mother who spent her time in nagging at her husband, Paul Knappenberger, upholding and abetting her older daughter, Miss Virginia Lott, and finding fault with Miss DeWolfe. She and Mr. Knappenberger were highly entertaining. Mr. Knappenberger has appeared in several of the former Mimes productions and audiences are beginning to know him as one of the group's comedians.

For two acts of the play he permitted himself and his favorite daughter to be "sat upon" by his wife and older daughter, but a short time after the openig of the third act, the audience and Mrs. Smith realized that he was master in his own domain.

Miss Lott was capable as the older daughter, pampered by her mother and a menace to her younger sister. Her part, while unsympathetic with the audience, was well-portrayed.

Charles Well, a newcomer to Marion and the Mimes, held up his end of the play well as the socially-prominent fiance of Miss Lott.

Elicker Well Received

Another bouquet in the cast goes to Charles Elicker for his part as the philosophic young man whose love affair was a mystery to himself until the final moments of the play. The audience with its inside knowledge of the way in which Miss DeWolfe was engineering her love affair, found it pleasant to watch Mr. Elicker unconsciously weaving his own romance.

Dr. C. G. Smith, Miss Marian Bush and A. I. Hinklin, were in minor roles that added interest as they came into the plot.

Miss Mildred Crow director of the production, was an enthusiastic member of the Mimes last year. "The Second Daughter" was her premier three-act play. She directed one one-act play last year.

The plot of the play is laid in the home of the family, in which the father and younger daughter have to stick together against a mother whose only ambition is her older daughter, a social climber and a hateful personality. Through one family quarrel after another the father and daughter come out defeated, until he decides he's been too soft for 25 years, and she sets out to win the young man who was once in love with her older sister.

The Mimes will present a group of plays Oct. 21 at the school auditorium.

BOY HAS PET BIRD

ENDS DIGESTIVE ILLS QUICK AND GAINS 13 POUNDS

Food does not nourish when it is not properly digested. That's why people who suffer from gas on stomach and bowels, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, etc., due to indigestion, often find themselves underweight, weak, with little energy and vitality.

All this is quickly changed when you start using the simple discovery known as Pape's Diapepsin. When people experience for themselves the amazing results of using these tasty tablets, they invariably feel compelled to tell others.

Mrs. Relda J. Glenn, 7031 Zoeter Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I suffered for over two years with pain in my stomach, gas and headaches; trying all the time to get relief by using medicines and treatments.

"Then I learned about Diapepsin and began using it. It has been a wonderful help to me. I eat pastries now without bad after-effects. How they used to make me suffer!

"Friends that I have told about Diapepsin have been helped in the same way. I have gained thirteen pounds since starting on it."

TEACHER VISITS 1st SCHOOL

PRESTON W. SEARCH RECALLS DAYS OF 60 YEARS AGO.

SIXTY years seems a long time measured by the calendar and it is a far cry from a desk in a little, old, one-room school house to the head of schools in Los Angeles, Iowa, Massachusetts, and a chair in Clark university. But to Preston W. Search of Carmel-by-the-Sea, in California, who this week is visiting old friends and former pupils in the county, the years do not exist and the traveling, which has brought him national and international recognition in the educational world, is still in the future.

Visits Old School

Yesterday Mr. Search motored to the western part of the county where as a stripling of a lad he taught his first school in the old Bain school near DeCliff and where for five days a week he presented the Three R's to boys and girls as old as himself and almost as large, and two nights a week taught writing and singing to the older members of the families in the vicinity. The old school house is gone these many years and the ground on which it stood now boasts of producing some of the righest agricultural products of the middle west, but Mr. Search remembers where the schoolhouse stood and where the rail fences were which had to be climbed before he reached his temporary home with Mrs. Mary McDole or the scholars. Included in the trip yesterday was a visit to the home of Mrs. McDole who with her husband made room for the "teacher" in her humble one-room cabin and provided for him three meals a day.

Today Mr. Search is receiving a number of his former pupils of the county at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Bain on Wallace street.

Has Faith in Youth

Mr. Search has the greatest faith in the youth of today and believes that the greatest things in life are its opportunities and doing things. Being busy is his tonic for health, happiness and a long life, and his masterful bearing and keen interest in the business of living bear out his philosophy of life and belie his nearly four score years.

The former Marion county teacher's years in the educational field has brought him in contact with thousands upon thousands of boys and girls whom he believes to be quite capable of carrying on the country's activities and solving its problems. To those students of early days he pays a high tribute in declaring that their characters were builded through the greatest hardship when they blazed the trail in the educational, church and social life of the country.

Widely Known Writer

Mr. Search who is a native of Marion occupies a place of national and international prominence as a writer, traveler and student of education. He is the founder of industrial schools and has been active in musical and civic enterprises throughout the west. He has given more than 7,000 lectures and was the first to organize the city system of schools on a basis of fundamental recognition of the individual. He was formerly editor of "The Advance in Education" and editor of the first Phi Delta Theta song book. He is the author of "An Ideal School," "Foundations of Belief," "The Individual in Mass Education," "The Ethics of the Public Schools," "Motives in Education," "Budget of Christmas Stories," and many other text books along educational lines.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Sept. 25

MOST propitious planetary intervention may be looked for on this day, with the major benefices bearing strong rule for gratification and growth, with even the customary adverse forces holding friendly attitudes. It is time for bold adventure and initiative, as well as for practical industry, with the prospect of advancing all interests and increasing the fortunes. Purely personal affiliations will also bring much happiness and should flourish, being particularly active.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much progress and happiness, with all departments of human endeavor under friendly stars and bringing material gratification as well as personal happiness. It is a time for pushing to the goal of heart's desire, with little danger of hazard or unhappiness.

A child born on this day should be resourceful, energetic, steady, industrious and ambitious, and should succeed in business and be very happy and gratified in its private life. It should shine in society and reach stable position generally.

REFORMED LAYMEN TO FORM LEAGUE

Group To Be Known as Churchmen's League; Synod To Meet.

An appeal that the laymen of the Reformed church in the United Sta tes affiliate themselves with the Reformed Churchmen's league, now being organized in various sections of the country, was made today by J. Q. Truxal, executive secretary of the league.

The project will be brought before an Ohio Synod meeting in Tiffin next week which Rev. H. F. Weckmueller, pastor of the First Reformed church here, will attend, accompanied by several laymen and an elder from the local church. J. K. Schindler has been named first delegate and W. C. Firstenberger has been named second delegate.

The league, which was organized a year ago "to stimulate interest in men's activities within the church, is conducted by a committee of prominent religious leaders, of which Mr. Truxal, an elder and vice president of the General Synod, is secretary.

Nine chapters of the league already have been formed, according to Mr. Truxal, and many more are in process of organization. When there are five chapters in a classis, they will constitute a Classical league. This work is largely financed by private gifts of laymen. The executive committee of the league at a meeting just held, has outlined the program for the coming year.

Pattern 1974

A charming frock for late summer and early fall combines beauty of fabric with the chic of cape collar and gracefully flared skirt. The curve of the bodice and skirt joining, repeats the line of the collar as it fastens through a slash in the bodice. Note the pin tucks at the waistline giving fullness to the bodice.

Pattern 1974 is lovely fashioned of flat crepe, voile, chiffon velvet or georgette in solid color, or print. Black, brown and green grounds are exceptionally smart with beige, white or turquoise designs.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch material.

Says Women Control Fate of Prohibition

By International News Service

SHAMOKIN, Pa.—The fate of prohibition lies with the women of America, declared Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, known as "The Georgia Cyclone," at the annual convention of the Northumberland county W. C. T. U. here.

"Multi-millionaires with all their money cannot win. They are reckless without women. When women decide that war must cease, then it will cease and when decide the liquor taffic must stop, then it will stop despite efforts of anti-organizations to prevent it.

"Old Glory must never surrender to John Barleycorn," she concluded.

EARLY REGISTRATION URGED BY SECRETARY

Brown Points to Need of Cooperating with Boards in Handling Work.

Early registration of Marion voters on Oct. 2, 10 and 11, days fixed by statute for the general registration this year, is urged by Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state, in a notice sent local election board officials.

Under the new code, the secretary said, detailed information will be sought from each voter registering, and consequently early registration will be necessary to permit election boards to handle a full registration on the three days.

"Unless citizens register promptly, it will be physically impossible for precinct registrars to care for all of them," the secretary declared. "The situation may arise whereby thousands of eligible voters will be disenfranchised because of their inability to register during the rush hours."

Failure to register on the three days fixed by law will make a voter ineligible to cast his ballot at the Nov. 4 election, unless he registers at the board of elections on days other than those specified. He can only register at the election board office, however, if he swears he will be out of the city on the regular three days, according to C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the Marion county board.

QUALITY... THROUGH AND THROUGH

One of the most important things that can be said about Oldsmobile is that it is designed and built primarily to give satisfaction.

That purpose, naturally, is reflected in everything about the car—in performance, in comfort, in dependability—and in quality . . . through and through.

Come in and examine this fine car and drive it. Test the brilliant performance, the restful comfort, the remarkable ease of control it provides. Note, too, the smart style and staunch, enduring construction of its beautiful Bodies by Fisher.

Then you'll know why thousands everywhere praise Oldsmobile as an outstanding motor car value—a great car to drive and a great car to own.

YOUTH FREED BY PETIT JURY

Elmer L. Ingmire, 19, Found Not Guilty of Statutory Charge Here.

Elmer L. Ingmire, 19, indicted by the Marion county grand jury on a statutory charge, was acquitted by a jury in common pleas court late yesterday when it returned a verdict of not guilty.

Ingmire was defended by Attorney L. E. Myers.

Hobart Hostetter, indicted at the same time for stealing an automobile yesterday withdrew his former plea of not guilty to the charge and threw himself on the mercy of the court by entering a plea of guilty. Sentencing was suspended by Judge George B. Scofield who ordered Hostetter to report each week to the court bailiff for a period of one year. His attorney was Kenneth Robinson, appointed by the court.

Hostetter's trial was set for today and his change of plea reduced the number of criminal cases assigned for this week to two, one in which Ingmire was a defendant and the other in which Harvey Lichtenberger, a farmer, will be tried Friday at 9 a. m. Lichtenberger was indicted on a charge of assault. His attorney is J. Wilbur Jacoby.

Asks Divorce

Wilful absence for six years is charged by Genora Hoffhein in her suit for divorce from Charles G. Hoffhein, filed yesterday in common pleas court.

Gross neglect of duty also is charged by the plaintiff. They were married on Aug. 8, 1907, and have five children, all minors and whose custody she seeks. She is represented by Attorney Frank Wiedemann.

Named By Court

Rudolph Kinsler has been appointed administrator of the estate of Christian Kinsler.

POLICE TESTIFY

Local Department Members Appear Before Toledo Jury.

Acting Police Chief Ira Shrock, Acting Police Captain A. W. McColly, Former Police Chief J. W. Thompson, and Patrolmen E. C. Macken and F. C. Norton appeared before a federal grand jury in Toledo this week to offer testimony regarding local cases now before the jury.

The policemen submitted evidence to the jury in four cases charging inter-state automobile thievery. Two of the cases were those of William McGraw of Marion, charged with stealing an automobile in Chicago and bringing it to Ohio, and John Debattista of Wisconsin, who is also charged with the theft of an automobile in Chicago.

C. E. SOCIETY, CLASS HOLD JOINT PICNIC

United Brethren Church Groups Have Wiener Roast at Camp.

The Christian Endeavor society and the Builders Supply school class of the United Brethren church held a joint wiener roast and picnic last night at the church park south of Marion. After the roast, the two organizations separated for business meetings.

The class opened its meeting with a prayer by the teacher, B. K. Hill, followed by an interesting talk by Mrs. William Curran. Committees for the coming year were appointed, and arrangements made for a Hallowe'en party Oct. 29 at the Community house. The class decided that in the future all meetings will be potluck suppers at the community house. Increased enrollment has made the class too large for entertainment in private homes.

Shirley Barnhart was in charge of a business session of the Christian Endeavor society. Miss Lillian Lust was in charge of a program which consisted of a duet by Thelma and Ruth Carrier, a reading by Geraldine Scranton, a pantomime by Glen Elmer Nicholson, a musical pantomime by Shirley Barnhart, Leah Roop and Helen Laverty and a story by Richard Tuttle. The meeting closed with a round table quiz led by Lillian Lust.

Easy to look at

IT'S AS EASY and natural to enjoy the fragrant mildness of a Camel Cigarette as it is to admire beauty when you see it.

Camels are made, and always have been made, for discriminating smokers—the people whose keen judgment unerringly selects the best. But that doesn't mean you have to be an expert to enjoy Camels! The delicate, mellow fragrance of those choice sun-ripened tobaccos is something that anybody can appreciate. Camels are naturally smooth and mild — never parched nor insipid.

Why is there such a swing to Camels? Because more and more smokers are learning the difference between true mildness and mere flatness. Give yourself the luxury of a cigarette that's always pleasant smoking.

Permanent Registration.

Would the city voter obviate the annoyance of quadrennial registration? The way has been made open.

The new election code passed at the last session of the Ohio general assembly makes provision for permanent registration of electors in all Ohio cities of 16,000 or over and in smaller cities by ordinance. Having once registered under the new code, further registration will be unnecessary save in cases where there has been a change of residence or failure to vote over a period of years. The time for such permanent registration, however, is limited, as the code sets out but three days—October 2, October 10 and October 11—and the hours of those days from 1 to 9 p. m., for the registration of something more than 1,600,000 Ohio electors.

As the registration forms require the giving of much information and must be signed and sworn to by the registrant, it will be impossible for the precinct registrars to handle all who may seek to escape from the time and trouble it has taken them to register quadrennially in the past unless they act promptly, and a situation may arise where many will be denied the opportunity to take advantage of this provision of the code if there is the customary delay with a resultant final rush.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown urges the necessity of early registration on this account, expressing the hope that housewives and others who may be able to do so should register as early in the afternoon as possible, which will leave the evening and night hours free for the registration of those who, by reason of their employment, are prevented from appearing at the polls during the afternoon.

For years there has been a call for permanent registration. Now that the general assembly has made legal provision for it, the electors of Ohio should show their appreciation by taking advantage of it. It will mean not only a saving of time and trouble to them, as stated, but also nullify the possibility that they may lose their votes through inadvertence. It will—or should, at least—mean more than that, for when permanent registration becomes general it should result to work a great saving to the taxpayers in the cost of elections. When there is no need for registration save in the cases of new voters and newcomers, the work of registration will be so reduced that there should be a comparable reduction in its cost.

On the Road to Recovery at Last.

Neither the business man of America nor the industrialist is content when the business of a year falls below that of the preceding year. The return from the year's business may exceed the yearly average of the preceding ten-year period, or five-year period, yet there is discontent. It's the American expectation to make a showing each year over that of the year before, and when this expectation is not realized, the American business man is inclined to hold that business has gone to the dogs.

This American trait no doubt was responsible in part for the depression which marked the first half of the present year and in lesser degree is still being felt. The man engaged in business or industry, coming to the realization that his business, month by month, was falling behind the record of the corresponding months in 1929, felt more and more depressed and communicated his spirit of depression to all with whom he came into contact either in a business or social way without stopping to consider that 1929 was an abnormal year; that 1929, despite the blight cast on business and industry in its closing months by the Wall Street series of crashes, was the peak business year of all our history as a nation.

True, many realized that last year's business was beyond the normal, but failed to appreciate how far above the normal business year it really was. The 1930 handbook of the department of commerce, analyzing all the government statistics affecting business, which is considered a final authority, brings out the abnormal character of the business of the past year. The handbook shows that industrial production was thirteen per cent. above the average for the base period from which it is computed—1923-1925—and six per cent. above the figure for 1928, which year had broken all preceding records.

"Tonnage of railway traffic increased eight per cent. compared with 1928, and on account of reduced operating expenses, the net operating income of the railways was seven per cent. greater," the summary of the report sets out.

"Export trade was exceptionally active during the early months of the year, but the year as a whole showed less than the usual increase in either quantity or value, although, when allowance is made for the difference in price levels as compared with the war period, all previous records were broken. Imports increased 7½ per cent. in value and fourteen per cent. in quantity when adjustment is made for the decided decline in prices of major imported commodities. • • • •

"For the year as a whole production in manufacturing industries was the largest ever reached, being seven per cent. greater than in 1928, twelve per cent. greater than in 1927, and seventy-eight per cent. greater than in the depression year, 1921."

Such was the record of the year with which business and industry compared what they were doing the present year, and the consequent feeling of depression suffered by them together with that of the Wall Street panics combined to do the rest. They became scared and laid off workers. Normal unemployment became abnormal and the country's buying power was decreased. Those still employed did not know how soon they might be let out, and they ceased to buy beyond their absolute necessities. Fear, rather than a failure of means, was the agency which added to business stagnation.

Happily, both the industrial and business worlds are recovering their courage. Both are restoring workers to their payrolls. Thousands upon thousands who were idle a few months ago are back at work. Their buying power has been restored. Fear is giving place to confidence. It will take time to make good the losses of nine months of depression, but the country is at last on the road to recovery from the unfortunate consequences of its scare.

A local stone company has added a night shift to its force to meet the increased demand for its product. That can hardly be taken as an evidence of business depression.

One thing which nobody may hope to see is the country weeping over the fact that the Civil Liberties union will have to lose the bonds it put up for the seven reds convicted in Gastonia, North Carolina, of the murder of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt, the reds under bond having folded their tents and disappeared like the traditional Arab.

If the first day of fall may be taken as indicative of the entire season, we have ahead of us three months of weather which will range from storm clouds and rain to sunshine and balmy breezes with an occasional bit of thunder and lightning on the side.

Asked his opinion of economic conditions in Europe on his return from a vacation of three months abroad, former Senator James A. Reed replied that he couldn't see how a man traveling across a country could form an intelligent opinion of that country's condition, economic or political. Great guns! An expression such as that, and from one so recently a senator, is simply revolutionary.

Sir Thomas Lipton has invited Commander Harold S. Vanderbilt and the owners of the Yankee, Weetamoe and Whirlwind, the contenders against the Enterprise for the defending of the America's cup, to race the Shamrock V in British waters next year. Hot stuff! Think of the possibility of another thrill next year!

Harry Manning, who commanded the crew of the lifeboat of the America which saved thirty-two men from the disabled Italian freighter, Florida, last year, has been granted an aviator's license by the department of commerce. If he preforms as skilfully in the air as he has on the sea, America has the making of another ace of aces.

The second George W. Norris, of Nebraska, told the first, to whom he was turned over by Chairman Nye, of the senatorial inquisition committee for questioning, that he entered the Republican primary out there to force him, Senator George W. Norris, to run as an independent. That may not have been the real purpose of the Nebraska grocer, but it outlines the only course the senator could in common decency have followed.

WHY NOT DEPORT ALIENS NOT USEFULLY EMPLOYED?

Editorial Opinion.

RUNNING AFOUL THE LAW.

The fact that nearly a fourth of Washington's population was arrested in the last fiscal year is more significant in its bearing on a relatively new sociological phenomenon than as a commentary on the lawlessness of the residents of the American capital. For the situation revealed anew by police department statistics is not peculiar to Washington alone. Every American municipality is likewise affected in greater or less degree, depending a good deal upon the zeal and activity of the police force.

Every American municipal council and state legislature, not to mention the congress, has adopted the same formula in dealing with the inevitable accompaniments of what we are pleased to call progress, and that formula is to enact more laws. Every law passed means another law to be broken. The automobile brought conditions undreamed of forty years ago, and the laws dealing with regulation of automobile traffic alone can not be passed fast enough to suit the average official. The radio brought other conditions and a whole code of radio law is in the making. So it has been with prohibition, aeronautics, heating plants, elevators and beauty parlors. That one-fourth of the population of Washington last year ran afoul some of the countless laws and regulations that now control the coming and going of every citizen every day is not nearly so amazing as that the remaining three-fourths of the population went scot-free and kept out of trouble.

What will come of it in the end nobody knows. Some one may hit upon a new formula, translated from or into a new philosophy, that will not depend upon statutory law or regulation to govern the lives of men. But that Utopia is far away. In the meantime a new point of view has developed regarding the incidental and almost necessary violation of law in the complex social order of the day. Our best citizens chuckle without shame over having been arrested for some infraction of law—running past a red light or permitting a tail light to burn out. The virtuous housewife and faithful mother zestfully describes the aftermath of a burst of speed down some smooth avenue. The architect of the United States capitol does not conceal his grin when served with a warrant for violating the smoke regulation. Such transgressions have become the rule. The reason the volume of these transgressions leads to great interest and possibly to viewing with alarm is that we still apply the old point of view to violation of law as a principle and interpret the figures alone without taking into account the nature and the inevitability of such violations. The time has come when the otherwise upright citizen pays his fine for law violation in the same spirit with which he writes his income tax check, something that is necessary and unavoidable, if unpleasant.

In spite of the hundred thousand odd arrests in the District last year, however, it is encouraging to note the decrease in cases involving felonies. In the fiscal year 1929 there were 4,061 felony cases. In the last fiscal year there were only 4,057. We are better, by four good citizens and true, than we used to be!—Washington Star.

Know Your Bathing Place.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In the past decade swimming has made rapid strides as an exercise and as a recreation. It is becoming more and more popular every year and is now recognized as one of the best forms of sport and exercise.

In olden days we gave little thought to the hygienic side of bathing. It is a far cry from the old swimming hole to the present-day popular bathing beaches where thousands go into seaside and inland waters, or to our finely-equipped swimming pools. Years ago no such throngs went into the water together as are now seen everywhere.

With the popular bent for swimming, there have come health problems. Public bathing places, swimming pools and bathing beaches have sprung up everywhere. As they grew, public health officials everywhere looked upon them as sources of danger through transmission of certain diseases. Among others, it has been thought typhoid fever, some social diseases, diphtheria, ear and sinus troubles and other diseases have had public bathing places as their sources.

Up to five or six years ago the construction, equipment and operation of these public bathing places varied much in different states and in different localities within a state. Many pools were poorly constructed and improperly equipped. There were no state control measures controlling such swimming places.

Through the cooperation of the public engineering section of the American Public Health association and the conference of state sanitary engineers a better state of affairs has been reached. Studies have been made along sanitary lines and in other helpful directions.

We can not be too careful where we bathe. Dirty water is a dangerous thing. It usually contains the germs of disease. Even though it appears clear, it may be contaminated. You must think of this when your boy or girl takes to the water just anywhere.

During the summer months haven't you seen boys diving into the brown, ugly waters surrounding a great city? In New York City you can see them along the shores of the Hudson or the dirty waters of the East river when your train runs along its shore. They are having what they no doubt call a beautiful time, but are in danger from no one knows what germ of disease.

During the fall and winter months swimming may now be carried on in well-managed bathing houses and swimming pools. Under the right sanitary conditions they provide splendid exercise and recreation.

It is well to remind ourselves that a thorough physical examination should precede any amount of swimming that is of a violent nature. It is very easy to overdo unless one is in good dondition. Unless one has a good reaction it is well not to stay in the water too long a time.

Today the best swimming pools are made safe by water often renewed and by disinfection by chlorination. Every swimming pool should have running water, and perhaps it is not too much to hope that all will be thus equipped some day in the near future.

Any sport that combines so well as does swimming, coordination of mind and muscle with real recreation is worth while. Under the best of conditions and taken in moderation it is a real help to well-being and good health.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. A. G. Q—What is the difference between a stroke of paralysis and a stroke of apoplexy? Also the difference between neuritis and neuralgia?

2—Is heart leakage curable? The heart occasionally misses a beat. Is this serious?

A—They are one and the same thing. Neuritis is due to inflammation of a nerve; neuralgia is a shooting pain through the nerve.

2—It may be, depending upon the extent of the trouble. A careful examination will determine whether or not the trouble is serious and will also determine the necessary treatment. Nervousness, palpitation or indigestion may be causing some of the trouble.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Sept. 24—Neighborhood saloons with the swing doors, mirrors in curlicued frostiness, intimate back rooms and other old-time trappings are as plentiful along the lower East Side as luxuriant whiskers. On such streets as Forsythe, Allen, Mulberry and Eldridge there is one or more to the block.

Their easy camaraderie is playing havoc with push-the-button-and-ask-for-Louis basement places uptown. Downtown there is no peep hole scrutiny. Customers step in and right up to the bar where old-time barkeeps with gates-ajar collars and shirt stud "sparklers" inquire: "Name the poison, gents?"

They have the informality of the Paris bistro. Mustaches dip into foaming mugs, ladies rest tootsies on brass rails and there is the cluckety-cluck of the dice box. Some have four bartenders. At the end of the bar, too, is the familiar twirling caster with cloves, orange peel, cinamon bark and coffee.

The rattle of cocktail shakers and the plink of touching glasses can be heard in the street. Camouflage is utterly abandoned. In some places it is possible to see under the door the half-legged line-up at the bar. South of Canal street, the wide open bar has the flourish of twenty years ago.

The saloons operate with a "dump supply." Liquors are in pitchers so—at the look-out's warning buzz—it may be quickly poured into handy zincs draining out into waiting receptacles next door. The supply is thus not lost in a raid and padlocking evidence is frustrated.

There are employes, derbied gentlemen reminduful of former bar flies, who keep supplies at proper quantity. They act as runners and when a special supply runs low, go several blocks away for a single bottle of the required stuff. Some have caches as far away as an innocent Bronx flat.

The only difference from the before-prohibition saloon is that tables for serving food are scattered about the bar-room. Meals are ridiculously low-priced, but those who come only for food are soon spotted. Next time they are gruffly informed all tables are reserved.

• • •

While New York has 30,000 speakeasies to supplant 16,000 licensed saloons, the strain on the speakeasy patron begins to tell. There is no suggestion of merriment. People eat and drink in silence, sitting on the edge of chairs.

The Philippine Islands.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

When Commodore George Dewey said many fire when ready, Gridley," on that able day in May, 1898, he began the canization of the Philippine island shells from the Olympia and her siste which soon brought the Spanish garr terms opened new fields for American which in other circumstances only a ver percentage would have thought of ex For the Philippines are a little more th 000 miles from the shores of the United

To people who have not stopped to up, when the Philippines are mentioned immediately jumps into the mind, yet th in all 3,144 islands in the group and number 1,095 are habitable. Luzon largest, its area being 40,818 square mile Mindanao running a close second with square miles. As a matter of fact, ele the islands, the largest, of course—have square mileage of 106,823 all the rest bein to show a few more than 8,000.

For a great many years after Spain these islands to the United States in Apr —the United States paid Spain $20,000,0 them as indemnity although they were captured during what is sometimes call "war" with Spain—there was enough do the islands to suit the most adventuro lively lad, named Aguinaldo, kept the Am troops on the jump for several of these until a newspaper reporter from Kansas, soldier, landed him in the cuartel, wh Spanish for prison. This man was Fre Funston who stuck to the army after th and became a major general in the r establishment.

But by and by the fight died out Filipinos and now, while they contin clamor for independence, their activities vocal. There are three main groups political life of the islands, the Visayan Tagalogs and the Ilocanos and while they on political feuds, just as the Democrat Republicans do here, they present a front when it comes to working fo dependence.

Most of the Filipino men of the better wear European clothes and some of the of the same class affect dresses such as seen here in the nineties, with large sleeves made from the pina cloth. The are attired somewhat like Gunga Dhin "uniform he wore wasn't very much befor scarcely less than 'alf of that behind."

Earthquakes bother the natives now an so the houses are built, as a rule, not mor three stories high, but the march of Am progress has caused a few steel skyscra be erected as high as five stories.

While the native languages all have a origin there are many dialects so distinc the people of one section can not unde their neighbors. Before the American pation Spanish, of course, was the cu language, but now the English language coming predominant and is taught i schools. I will tell you some more about interesting people in my next article on day.

"Good morning," Gray said to Byers, and the greeting was returned. Gray sat down at the table, several feet away from the president's desk, and began talking in a normal voice. Stringer left the room, passed through the anteroom outside, and started down the corridor.

He had scarcely passed down the corridor when he heard a sudden burst of pistol shots coming from the direction of the office. He ran back toward the anteroom.

Several persons in the anteroom, meanwhile, had heard the voices of Gray and Byers rising to a high, angry pitch. The argument apparently was short, however.

Views Tragic Scene

After the initial burst of eight shots there was a pause. Then two more were heard. Eugene S. Williams, general counsel of the road, looked through the hole one of the bullets had drilled in the thin partition and saw the body of Byers slumped against the anteroom door. Across the room, on the floor beside the chair he had taken when he entered the office, was Gray, with two wounds in his chest.

Williams opened the door, gradually pushing the president's body aside. He walked over to Gray.

"Who did the shooting?" he asked.

"That is obvious," replied the vice president. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness.

That was all he said until he reached the hospital, as surgeons were preparing for an emergency operation he opened his eyes once and remarked: "Everything is growing so black." He died at 4:20 p. m. without speaking again.

In the office of the president, investigators found one automatic pistol. In Gray's clothing, after he was taken to the hospital, a similar one was found. The presence of two led police to believe at first that the men had been in a duel. Later, though, it was learned Gray had bought both back in 1918.

In the body of the dead president the coroner found eight bullets. Police believe that he started for the anteroom door when the first shot was fired, but that Gray, firing with keen accuracy, killed him just as he grasped the knob to flee.

Busy men will help others if they are asked to; but they do not make a business of looking for that kind of tasks.

SITES STARTS FIGHT TO ESCAPE DEATH

gun. She said he walked out of the station with his hands in his pockets.

Woman Identifies Sites

Mrs. Gledhill identified Sites as one of the three members of the bandit gang. Both women related details of the attempted robbery that led to the shooting. Mrs. Gledhill told of hearing several shots fired but was unable to testify as to the person firing them.

Attorney Matt Mosbacher, counsel for Sites, failed in an attempt to obtain an admission from Mansfield officials that the defendant had been put through the "third degree", and they procured the confession only after assuring the alleged slayer that he "would be given a break."

Sites was kept in solitary confinement unable to communicate with other prisoners held in the shooting. Deputy Sheriff Roy Brady of Mansfield admitted in cross examination.

Dr. P. A. Murr of Galion, the physician attending Wilcox at the hospital, told of the nature of the wounds. He was the last witness on the stand.

Tells of Revolver

Chief Frank Cook and Capt. George Moody of the Galion police department told of the circumstances at the filling station after the shooting.

Sheriff Aaron Davis of Richland county told of the .32-caliber revolver owned by McCartney and said to have been used by Sites during the holdup. The revolver was defective, but, according to testimony of Sheriff George Davenport of Crawford county, was capable of being fired.

Other Richland county officials including the prosecutor and deputy sheriff also testified in regards to the confessions obtained from Sites.

Sites Indifferent

Staring straight ahead, Sites seemed indifferent to the testimony offered at the trial. He accompanied the jury to the scene of the shooting at Galion Tuesday morning. While the jurors where being shown through the station, he remained in the sheriff's car smoking a cigaret. He showed little interest in the filling station.

The trial continued to draw large crowds of spectators. Since the taking of testimony started Tuesday afternoon, the courtroom has been filled to capacity.

When Mrs. Wilcox took the stand this morning, she was composed and answered all questions of attorneys without difficulty.

After the defense completes its case this afternoon, the jury will head the closing arguments of attorneys.

Trade Paper To Note Improvement in Sales

By International News Service

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 24—Sustained improvement, although not rapid, in iron and steel demand with much of the betterment represented by future commitments rather than orders for current shipment will be noted by the Iron Age tomorrow in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade.

Aggregate specifications are averaging close to 15 per cent higher than in August and for some steel sales offices are running ahead of the volume of a year ago.

Kentucky Teacher Recovering After Lying Unconscious 47 Days.

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 24—Miss Mariah Stiglitz, 26, a school teacher, who lay unconscious at a hospital for 47 days from injuries in an automobile accident, was recovering at her home here today.

Her injuries included a fractured skull, a dislocated vertebra in the neck—and ivy poisoning. She was thrown in a growth of poison ivy when her car got out of control and left the road. For a month and a half she lay in a coma at the Kentucky Baptist hospital here, kept alive by receiving nourishment through tubes. She would automatically respond to orders to touch her face or raise her hands, but she showed no signs of consciousness or understanding, physicians said. Then came a delirium, which was followed by complete consciousness.

Hitler Summoned To Declare Attitude Toward Government

By International News Service

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 24—Adolf Hitler, militant head of the German Fascists who swept into political power in the recent German elections, will appear before the supreme court of the land tomorrow to testify whether or not his party has intentions of overthrowing the government, it was revealed today.

This startling turn in events followed opening of the trial of three young former army lieutenants who are charged with seeking to establish Fascist "cells" in the fifth artillery regiment of the army. The technical question, from a legal aspect, is whether or not they were guilty of revolutionary activity.

CLAIMS MOVIE STAR OWES FOR GAMBLING

Resort Owner Charges Clara Bow Did Not Pay $13,900 Debt.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24—Having issued a statement denying anyone had a "rightful claim" against her, Clara Bow, film actress, remained silent while attorneys for a Lake Tahoe resort proprietor today sought to collect alleged gambling debts totalling $13,900 which they said were incurred by a girl with flaming red hair who had been introduced as the "It" girl of the screen.

Miss Bow issued the statement after attorneys for James McKay, operator of a gambling resort on the Nevada shore of the fashionable Lake Tahoe, announced they had appealed to B. P. Schulberg, production manager of the studio employing the actress.

McKay said the girl gave four checks for losses at roulette and other games last week and that the checks had been returned to him marked "payment stopped."

The checks were said to have been given in amounts of $6,000, $7,300 and two for $300 each, drawn on a Hollywood bank.

The actress, after hearing of McKay's statement, gave out the following statement yesterday:

"If anyone in the world feels he has a rightful claim against me for any sum of money whatsoever, which I deny, I will gladly accept service of any legal documents. I always pay every honest debt promptly."

ASK REED'S RETURN TO POLITICAL ARENA

Friends of Former Missouri Senator May Start Drive for Office.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24—Friends of the veteran James A. Reed of Missouri sought word from him here today on pleas that he return to public life.

Two propositions confronted the silver-haired Missourian as he came to the capital after a trip through Europe. One is that he run again for the Democratic presidential nomination, the other that he seek re-election to the senate two years hence.

Ed Villmoare of Kansas City, intimate friend of Reed, came here to meet the fiery former senator. Villmoare said friends of the Missourian were urging him both for the presidency and the senate.

The way has been opened for Reed to run again for the senate by the announcement of Senator Hawes, Democrat of Missouri, that he intended to retire at the expiration of his term in 1932.

Reed is an old foe of President Hoover. He attacked Hoover as food administrator under President Wilson while the Missourian was a member of the senate. He renewed his assault on the Republican president in a radio speech last spring.

Finances Cause of Domestic Death Pact

By International News Service

YORK, Pa., Sept. 24—Desperate over financial difficulties, Harry Dietrich, 40, a farmer near Spry, seven miles south of here, killed his wife and four children with an axe and then hanged himself from a rafter in his barn, it was disclosed here today.

Dietrich left a note in which he said "financial worry" motivated his action and that the family had "decided to die together."

The slaying evidently took place Sunday night, Coroner I. U. Zech said today after he had visited the farm and investigated.

County Federated Clubs Launch Season Activities at Luncheon for 32 Guests

COVERS were placed for 32 at the luncheon meeting of members of the executive board of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs yesterday at the Marion club, when plans for the year's activities were discussed. The meeting launched club activities for the year and reports of the various chairmen were presented. The meeting was in charge of the new federation president, Mrs. Harold K. Mouser.

Among the projects to be sponsored by the clubs this year is the presentation of the music appreciation series for children, plans for which were announced by Mrs. R. O. Bresler, music chairman. The first concert will be given the morning of Nov. 1 at the Palace theater.

The president announced the sponsoring of a clearing house luncheon meeting once a month at which time heads of the various organizations of the city will meet for a discussion of civic projects and interests. The members voted to endorse the observance of Forget-me-not day sponsored by the American Legion. Announcement was made that a bonus would be given the club having the largest percentage of attendance at the federation meetings during the year. Mrs. Walter E. Hane, art chairman, announced the presentation of Mary Elizabeth Cook of Columbus and New York in a joint meeting of the federation and Art club members, in November, and Miss Pansy Rauhauser, educational chairman, presented the proposal for the purchase of a book on "Maps" by Emerson Fite, to be placed in the Ohioana library at Columbus by the local organization.

During the business session the resignation of Mrs R. A. Garvin as program chairman was accepted. Mrs. George A. Bowman was chosen a delegate to the Central district conference Oct. 9 and 10 at Newark and Mrs. Walter E. Hane was named alternate. Mrs. W. N. Harder gave a short talk on fine arts.

Members of the federation will open their season Oct. 7 in the ballroom at Hotel Harding, at which time a program on "American Citizenship" in charge of Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer, citizenship chairman, will be given.

Art Club Brings Display of Glassware from Museum

AN interesting exhibit of glassware has been brought to the city through the efforts of members of the Art club and will be placed on display in the window of the L. H. Ford jewelry store on West Center street, the latter part of the week.

The exhibit is owned by the Toledo Musuem of Art and is a part of the exhibit presented by Edward Drummond Libbey, founder and late president of the museum

The specimens in the Egyptian group on exhibition are of about the third century B C., made before the invention of the blow pipe, when the semi-molten glass was shaped around a core of sand and a metal rod which was afterwards withdrawn. Glass ribbons plastically applied and combed to the pattern desired and then reheated and rolled smooth formed the usual ornamentation.

Examples of Syrian blown glass which is of the fourth period B. C. include a large balsamarium and a tiny cosmetic cup. Other examples of the first to the fourth century A. D. are of conventional patterns of definite variety and ingenuity. Three examples of this period are in the exhibit shown here. An interesting story of the method of making Roman cameo glass and the fragment shown in the collection illustrates the technique of the Portland vase in the British museum and of the famous cameo glass vase in the Toledo museum. This cameo glass was made in Rome about the first century A. D. Examples of Roman Millefiori glass of the first century B. C. and the first century A. D. are varieties of Millifiori including Moderepose, onyx, ribbon laminated and mottled. The process of making the glass involves the fusing together of small pieces of colored glass which have first been arranged in the pattern desired.

The use of glass of jewelry and charms in the shapes of human and animal heads, miniature vases for ornaments and even large beads for decorating camel trappings were made in brilliantly colored glass and many of these are shown in the museum collection.

Included in the exhibit here is a gorgeous Spanish glass bottle of the Seventeenth century, paper weights and a lovely and interesting Germanic engraved glass of the Nineteenth century. Of the early American period is a cup plate, of the period of more than a century ago when many designs were in patriotic or historic themes.

A goblet illustrating the modern type of glassware was designed by the Toledo Museum of Arts School of Design for designers of the Libby Glass Co. is in tion. The portion and the various modern based on the principles symmetry.

Lodge Observes Anniversary of Founding at Meet

MEMBERS of Sosnowski lodge No. 168, I. O. O. F presented a program and later enjoyed a social hour in observance of the seventy-ninth anniversary of the founding of the Rebekah lodge last night in the Odd Fellows hall. The program was preceded by a short business session during which it was planned to confer the degree of chivalry at a meeting here Oct. 25.

Mrs. M. A Elsey, chairman, presided for the program which opened with music by the Odd Fellows orchestra and the welcome greeting by Mrs Frank Hunter. Mrs. C. E. Turley contributed two vocal numbers and Mrs. Frank Reenzenberger entertained with a reading. Other musical numbers were a vocal solo "Gypsy Song" by Miss Janet Sycks accompanied at the piano by Miss Catherine Parcher and a duet by Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Turley. Mrs. Grover C. Dixon entertained with a reading and a talk was given by Dr. Turley. During the program hour Mrs. Mary Dudley of Williamstown, W. Va., a charter member of the lodge, was introduced.

Refreshments were served during the social hour. The next meeting will be Oct. 14.

CHAPTER 20

A New Mystery

SOON after the woman in blue had departed, Thorne arrived at Oaklands. He swung toward the house but instead of approaching it when in sight of the building, left the walk and crossed the lawn, bearing to the left.

As he circled a clump of bushes he caught sight of a wheel chair being slowly propelled parallel with the house. The ever-attentive Miss Kline was not there and Thorne, close enough to see Elsa's hands on the wheels, noted the dexterity with which she maneuvered the chair to her liking.

Instead of going either straight around the house, or turning back toward Thorne and continuing in that direction, she faced her chair toward the row of windows and tilting back her head, stared up at them. By the movement of her right hand, Thorne could tell she was checking them off, counting slowly and every now and then pausing to refer to a piece of paper in her lap.

His interest thoroughly aroused, the detective approached her noiselessly. Some uncanny intuition of another's presence caused her to glance up and she tucked the chart inside her coat. The movement dislodged the small writing pad, it skidded off her knee and fell unnoticed on the turf as Thorne accosted her.

"What attracts you especially in the architecture of Oaklands?" he inquired, lifting his hat. "Its spaciousness?"

"Vastness is a better word," she responded quickly. "Frankly, Mr. Thorne, I shouldn't care to live in so large a house; it isn't my idea of a home.

Thorne ran his eyes swiftly over the mansion before them. "Those dormer windows," he began softly, "in the third floor, what do they open into?"

"I don't know," shrugging her shoulders. "I cannot roam upward, Mr. Thorne," touching her chair. "Why not," with a covert glance at him, "see for yourself?"

"I will." Thorne took out his cigarette case and offered it to her. "You won't smoke?" as she waved it away. "Then may I?" he selected a cigaret and, after lighting it, proffered his match box. "Take it back, it's yours."

She eyed him in surprise, with a touch of disdain. "Surely you don't think I count match boxes——"

"But this particular one," turning it over; "with its red-tip and blue-top matches, is unusual; in fact I've only seen matches like it in Dr. Kane's bill fold."

"Let me see the box." Elsa straightened up and regarded it with interest. 'Dr. Kane asked permission to smoke during our talk. He must have left the box in my room, for I remember now, he used his own matches——"

"And took away three in his bill folder," with quiet persistence. "Why, Miss Chase?"

Again she shrugged her shoulders. "I cannot account for a man's vagaries," shortly. "Why waste time over trifles, Mr. Thorne?"

"Life is made up of trifles," he retorted. "Tell me, have you any news of Jack Winslow's whereabouts?"

Elsa eyed him steadily. "None." She sighed deeply. "Oh, Mr. Thorne, you have disappointed me," she murmured. "I have asked about you, learned such wonderful things of your career, and yet you do nothing in clearing up this terrible tangle!"

"Have just a little patience." Thorne thrust his hands in his pockets and gazed down at the ground and the white writing pad caught his eye. Obviously she had dropped it. . .

Just then a hand fell on his shoulder and Winslow's pleasant voice sounded in his ear.

"Well, well! why didn't Lambert tell me you had come?" he exclaimed. "Elsa, don't you think it too cold for you to longer here any longer? Come in the house, both of you."

As they progressed forward Thorne dropped back and, unseen by either Winslow or Elsa, pocketed the small scratch pad. Inside the front door Miss Kline met them and wheeled Elsa down the hall toward her bedroom.

"No news?" inquired Winslow, as the two women disappeared out of hearing distance. Thorne shook his head and the older man whitened to his lips. "I cannot understand it," he muttered. "Is it possible, Thorne, that Jack has met with some motor accident?"

"The police would hear of it if he had," Thorne replied. "A description of Jack Winslow has been sent broadcast to every precinct and hospital." Thorne bent closer and lowered his voice. 'Does Jack take dope?"

Winslow recoiled, his face ashen. "Good God, no!"

"So far as you know," Thorne took a short turn about the hall. "There, sir, I didn't mean to upset you," as Winslow raised tragic eyes to his. "Dismiss what I said from your mind," and he added more briskly: "Can I go up to your third floor?"

"Certainly." Winslow came out of his daze and led the way to the elevator. Part of the great attic was unfinished, although boarded over. Winslow went ahead, opening the doors of different store rooms, some filled with empty trunks; one, which he unlocked with due caution, had cases of pre-war whisky and champagne, while still others contained discarded or damaged furnitude. A door at the north end of the attic refused to open as Winslow turned the knob and he looked in some perplexity at the detective.

"This is Jack's private sanctum," he explained. "He has all his junk up here. He did a lot of experimenting with chemicals at one time, and so discolored and stained the porcelain tubs and washstand in his bathromo, that Julia insisted that he fit out a place up here, where he could be as untidy as he wished. But it's never kept locked. I don't understand," and he shook the door vigorously in his efforts to open it.

Thorne laid a restraining hand on his shoulder. "No good doing that," he advised. "See, there is a new lock—recently put in."

"What shall we do?" questioned Winslow eagerly.

Thorne straightened up. "Let's go to Jack's room." An hour later Thorne admitted himself baffled as he stood once more in the middle of Jack's room and gazed slowly around. In no possible or impossible place had he found any key that would fit the lock on the door of the room in the attic; nor had he located one clew as to Jack's where-abouts.

"May I use your telephone?" he asked.

It took several minutes to get police headquarters. Thorne instructed the sergeant to tell Inspector Mitchell, then out of the building, to come as quickly as possible to Oaklands and to bring a locksmith with him.

Why did not Jack Winslow come forth and proclaim his innocence of any participation in the murder of Dr. Kane, his uncle's house guest?

Thorne thrust his hands deep in his pockets, his old and familiar trick when debating with himself. As he did so, his right hand came in contact with the scratch pad which he had picked up under Elsa's wheel chair. The first sheet was devoid of pen or pencil mark, but on closer examination the detective made out the impression left when the sheet above it must have been heavily written upon by a blunt pencil.

Taking out his magnifying glass Thorne studied the marks, the impression was fairly distinct and he made it out without difficulty—1819 35th street.

Suppose Elsa Chase had gotten word from Jack and she had jotted down his address?

The ringing of the door bell aroused Thorne and he stood near the entrance while Lambert admitted the plain clothes detective seeking Mr. Winslow.

"Hang around," Thorne whispered, "After you've seen Winslow, get him to take you to the attic and wait there until Inspector Mitchell comes. I'll be back later."

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

WEDNESDAY. We had catfish for supper again last night and tonight, and that will be all. My grandfather sold the rest of it to the fish market, and I am glad he did, because if he hadn't when the rest had got tired of it I would have had to of et the rest of it. Because nothing is let waste around our house. I hopped out of bed this morning and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and the wind was blowing off the lake so hard that when I opened the window it fanned me with my shirttail, and it was chillish enough without that.

The bunch was out in the barn when I got out there to do the milking, and Nibs was there and he had on the same britches, and when I axted him how he got them he said he was paddling down the river close to the shore getting ready to make a sneak for home when it got dark, and when he got to the railroad bridge there was his pants against the buttment. He said he didn't think he would ever be so glad to see a pair of pants. He wears his grandfather's old ones and they are so loose that he ought to wear two suspenders and a belt, and then not go in swimming with them.

When we had got the cows out, I skun out for home again and pulled the catfishes head off the barn and sot it on top of my head with the mouth up and wore it to school like a hat. I was going to show the teacher I wasn't a lire, but String snuck up behind me and got hold of the edges of the gills on each side and jerked down on it, and the next I knowed my head popped out of its mouth, and we were all trying to get it off, only I was the only one that was trying as hard as he could, when the teacher came. She certainly was supprized. She got a butcher knife from Mush's wife and even with it she had a hard time getting the head off.

Feeble said the best way would be to cut my head off, and we were in Mush's wife's basement and she had been mopping, and when Feeble said that Banty put his foot behind hers and I gave her push and the next she knew she was setting in the mop pail full of muddy water. She looked supprized. First she tried to get up and the bucket stuck. Then she looked crosseyed, and then she turned over and started to walk out on her hands and feet with the bucket on the high end of her. The teacher took it off and told her she might go home and get some dry clothes on. Then we got my fish head off and I hung it on a nail in the basement, and the hell wrang. When I went for it after school someone had swiped it. But it was pretty near ruint anyhow and didn't smell like a rose either, so I didn't care very much. Someone has filled my cow's tail full of stickers.

Loafing is the best cure for a bad temper.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Leads the Guests to the Dining Room.

THERE was a note of such gloating in Philip Veritzen's voice, unconscious perhaps but distinct as he commented upon my decision to wear his flowers, that I controlled my fingers with difficulty from the impulse to tear the spray of exquisite white orchids away from my shoulder and hurl it in his smugly smiling face. Two things restrained me. One was the realization that I must not spoil the plan to which even Dicky had acquiesced—that of keeping the famous theatrical producer in a good humor, in the hope that he might later relent toward Mary and Noel. The other was the knowledge that some time during the evening Dicky meant to disabuse his mind artistically but unmistakably of any impression that I wore the orchids because I preferred them to my husband's Colonial bouquet of rosebuds.

Mollifying Phil Veritzen

I shot a furtive glance at Dicky from beneath the lowered eyelashes with which I had received Mr. Veritzen's flamboyant greeting and drew a quick breath of relief when I saw that he was at the other side of the room talking to Helena Brixton, whom he was to take down to dinner, and could not possibly have heard my employer's saccharine tones. Then I looked up at Mr. Veritzen with a little smile.

"There was never any question as to my decision in my mind," I said. "How could there be, when you have been so munificent to us all? I, as the hostess, certainly could not refuse to wear them, even if I had wished to be so ungracious. And I did not wish to be," I hastily added as I saw his eyebrows narrow. "The only reason I let you infer an indecision was because Miss Fairfax, in a jest of questionable taste, gave you the impression that I meant to wear another bouquet."

His brows untwisted themselves, but even as he smiled he looked hard at the rosebuds in my belt. But, evidently recollecting his poise and reputed perfect breeding, he made no further comment save a murmured reference to the "orchids suiting me perfectly."

"Thank you," I said conventionally, breathing a little paean of relief that a colloquy I dreaded had proved so innocuous. "And now, I am sure we are ready to go down to the dining room. Let me see!" I mentally "counted noses" and beckoned to Dicky.

"We can go down now," I said. "Will you tell the men that they will find place cards upon the table showing where they are to sit. The women already know about it."

"And then, oh light of my life, may I rush them into the elevators?" Dicky queried nimbly. "Otherwise, you're likely to have to restore some of us with pre-war vintage, or what have you, besides running the risk of missing the first of Mr. Veritzen's swell show."

If my fastidious employer winced at Dicky's slangy characterization of the finest theatrical programme upon Broadway he did not show it.

"You run no risk, my dear sir," he said a bit pompously. "The curtain will not rise until our party is seated."

"Ah!" Dicky bowed from the waist. "I crave pardon. I should have remembered the prerogatives of the great. But we shouldn't abuse our privileges, so I'll ride hard pronto on these pracing steeds."

"Your husband is pleased to be facetious," Mr. Veritzen said, looking after Dicky as he went from one group to another, patently relaying my message.

"He is always high-spirited," I returned demurely, but determined to make no pology for my husband to my employer. "And now shall we go down to dinner?"

"Do you mean," there was suddenly something curiously resembling a schoolboy's surprised gratification in his voice, "that I am to be your dinner partner?"

"Who else?" I answered lightly. "I am the hostess, and you are the most important masculine guest."

He made me an elaborate bow before offering me his arm.

"My modesty forbids me to subscribe to the latter statement, but I am deeply grateful and highly honored, nevertheless."

Noel, Mary and Cameron

I was glad that no one apparently had heard his elaborate little speech. There was a general movement toward the elevators. Dicky, as host with Helena Brixton, Harry Underwood with Edith Fairfax, and Lillian with Charles Owen, as Lillian and I had planned it when we were putting the place cards around the table.

"I'll take the reptile off your hands if he does show up, which I doubt," Lillian said, "and as for the female of the species, and I mean s-n-a-k-e, Harry will see that dearest Edith doesn't get too cohrash during the party. I only wish we had somebody of his age to pair off with that slicked-hair Cameron, but we haven't."

I sighed an echo to her last three words as I saw the talkie star at Mary's left—Noel had sturdily established himself at her right—meant to monopolize Mary's attention—if he could.

Sharing Good Things

Helping yourself you help Ohio

The best customer your state has for the food it produces is A & P. The reason is simple: A & P has to buy a larger supply of this food than anyone else because of the demand for it from hosts of housewives all over the country who trade in A & P stores.

This helps the producer just as A & P methods help you. Producers, to prosper, must have sure, quick, and good markets. You, to be satisfied, must have the best of what you like at the lowest possible cost.

Ask the food and allied industries of Ohio who are their very big customers—for their meats, meat products, cereal and other package foods, fresh fruits and vegetables, soaps and other famous products. Last year A & P bought more than $34,308,000 worth at a fair price, and will buy still more this year.

Why a low price to you and a fair price to producers? . . . Because all the money you pay A & P for food—less only actual expenses and A & P's small service charge—goes to the producers.

Mouser Says Congress Will Take Definite Action on Galion Building.

Special To The Star

GALION, Sept. 24—Grant Mouser was the speaker at the regular Kiwanis luncheon at Plank's restaurant Tuesday noon. In Mr. Mouser's talk, the club was assured that Galion would have a new postoffice, the funds for such building to be included in the government appropriation of $323,000,000 for new federal buildings.

He said that the December congress would likely make a definite appropriation for the new building here. Other points in Mr. Mouser's talk were on the constitution and the importance of keeping wealth and government decentralized.

Among the guests present at yesterday's meeting were: Charles F. Michaels of Bucyrus, and Judge Garling of Lima, who is a candidate for reelection.

J. F. Bemiller, the Kiwanis president, also superintendent of the Galion schools, and John Schalk, manager of the local Ohio Northern Telephone Co., were elected as delegates to the state convention of Kiwanis clubs Oct. 13 to 15, at Toledo. Frank Duffy and Herman Elchorn will act as delegates.

WOMEN OF COUNTY TO START PROJECTS

Instruction Will Be Given by Extension Leaders of State University.

Special To The Star

MT. GILEAD., Sept. 24—For several years, farm women of Morrow county have carried a project through the winter months. These projects have consisted of child care, home care of the sick, vegetable cookery, meats and meatless dishes and many others.

The projects were carried on by the women leaders who received their instruction from the extension specialists sent out by Ohio State university.

A picnic will be held at the fairgrounds Sept. 30 for all farm women interested in the project. The assistant state home economics leader, Mrs. Blanche Bowers, will be at the picnic to discuss projects and Miss Alma Garvin, nutrition specialis of Ohio State university, who has been giving the food instruction, will assist. Mrs. Schleppi, an outstanding leader of Franklin county, will tell of the work done in her county. Mrs. H. P. Miller, a master home maker of Ohio, will lead a discussion on "Why We Don't Go to Camp."

Youth Hurt in Fatal Crash Leaves Hospital

GALION, Sept. 24—Ralph Dice of Caledonia, who was injured early Sunday morning when his car crashed into a tree on the South State road, was dismissed Tuesday from the Good Samaritan hospital and taken to his home at Caledonia. Merrill Gist, 24, of Caledonia, who was fatally injured in the same accident was buried yesterday in the Caledonia cemetery.

Name Mt. Gilead Woman to Post in Club District

MT. GILEAD, Sept. 24—Mrs. Will H. Schwartz of Portsmouth, president of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, has named Mrs. Nelson Talmage of Mt. Gilead as one of the new district chairman for the federation. Mrs. Talmage will serve as central district chairman of health in the department division of health headed by Mrs. Carl Sawyer, Marion.

PASTOR TRANSFERRED

MT. GILEAD, Sept. 24—Rev. J. C. Smith, for the past four years pastor of the Trinity M. E. church, has been transferred to Leetonia in Columbiana county. Rev. W. K. McKay of Clyde will succeed Rev Smith here.

TEACHER GIVES TALK

BUCYRUS, Sept. 24—Members of the Bucyrus Rotary club were addressed during their regular noon day luncheon at the Elks Tuesday by Miss Olga Winegartner, visiting teacher of the local high school, who gave an outline of her work.

INVENT NEW ALARM

Invisible Eye Device Detects Prowlers or Fire Smoke.

By International News service

BERLIN—Burglary can be conquered by invisible rays.

These rays, the invention of the noted German engineer, Fritz Lewin, will guard a room against all intruders. The minute an intruder enters the sphere of these emanations, an instantaneous alarm is set up by the machine from which these rays are sent.

The machine, in appearance somewhat like a small radio set, has been named "the sleepless eye" by its inventor.

From this "eye" radiations absolutely invisible to the human eye at any time flood the room in which it is placed. No sooner is the path of these rays crossed than bells are set ringing.

Should a fire break out, the presence of smoke, interrupting the path of emanation, will set the alarm going, thus providing the first real fire alarm ever invented.

Fault of all wall paper is that you get tired of it.

If you are not a sharp observer, you always have to be investigating afterward.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

Even though Harding was defeated badly in its first start of the season last Saturday by Toledo Central the players of the local squad seem to be confident of their ability to hand Galion the short end of the count this coming Saturday in the first N. C. O. game for either team. Galion will be tough if last Saturday's game with Springfield is any indication of the neighbor city's power. Springfield was able to beat them only 14 to 0 while Harding was losing 31 to 0. Although Springfield is scarcely in a class with Toledo Central the game definitely proved that Galion is much stronger than it was believed earlier in the season.

• • •

One of the biggest helps for Harding this Saturday would be a large and enthusiastic crowd of spectators and rooters spurring the team on in its fight to win. Last Saturday the distance to Toledo prevented many persons from seeing the game. This week there will be no such barrier. Harding will do its part. If the fans and students not on the squad try half as hard as the team there will be a great game, win lose or draw. It is reported that Galion will bring the high school band with them to inaugurate the N. C. O. season. If the Harding band is not out tooting its instruments something is decidedly lacking in Harding High.

It appears that increasing numbers of sports addicts are now indulging in the sport of roller skating at the newly opened roller skating rink at the east end of the city. Athletes who spent all summer obtaining bruises and burns sliding into bases on a ball diamond are now receiving the same thing sliding into—well, most anything. There apparently is but a single difference in the slides. You are asked to pay for the privilege of sliding on the skating rink while you could slide into all the bases you wished at no cost at all except an occasionally new pair of trousers.

The sport seems to be rapidly gaining favor in Marion. Novelty stunts are being held each night at the rink and the crowds are increasing nightly.

Little World's Series Opens in Rochester

By The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 24—A minor league baseball's outstanding classic, the "little world's series," opens here today with Billy Southworth's Rochester Redwings, international league champions, and Louisville, pennant winners in the American Association, as combatants.

The first four games of the nine-game series will be played here, the schedule calling for contests today, tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

DOUBLE WIN ENOUGH TO CINCH FLAG RACE

Chicago Possibilities Fade, Although Bruins Have Mathematical Chance.

BY COPELAND C. BURG,

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—The St. Louis Cardinals today reached out and wrapped their long fingers around the National league bunting, something in the fashion of a sea-roving octopus snatching up a 12-course dinner.

They downed the Phillies again, 19 to 16, setting a seasonal league record as they rocked four Philly hurlers for 26 blows. The Cardinals now have only to snatch two more games and the barn door is locked.

If you insist on figures, here they are: Both the Cards and Cubs have four more games to play. The Cubs can win if they take all four, should the Cardinals break a leg and fall in three. The Cubs cannot lose a single game and cop and any day that the Bruins fall and St. Louis wins, the old rag will be floating down there in Missouri skies.

The Giants went into a virtual tie with the sad Robins for third place, setting back Brooklyn 8 to 2. Dazzy Vance was not his old self and his support was worse than ragged. Fitzsimmons sent the flock away with only six singles.

Jackie May and Ken Ash hurled the Reds to a twin bill triumph over the Pirates, 8 to 0 and 5 to 2. Nick Cullop, former home run king of the American Association, continued his prowess in big time circles, clouting one of the longest homers on record in Forbes field for the Reds in the opening game.

Other teams in both leagues were not scheduled.

The National league standings this morning were:

Club	W.	L.	Pct.	Tp.
St. Louis	89	61	.593	4
Chicago	86	64	.573	4
Brooklyn	84	66	.560	4

HORNSBY TALKS OF PLANS FOR BRUINS

Rumors Indicate Several Stars May Get Change of Scenery.

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman who succeeds Joe McCarthy as manager of the Chicago Cubs, today talked of his plans for the Chicago club in 1931.

Hornsby's remarks on arriving here last night from the east with the club indicated that there will be changes in the Cubs personnel, some of them surprising. Not only the inefficients but some of the stars as well are in for the weeding out process, according to indications.

Some rumors settled about Hack Wilson, the 1930 home run king in which it was said that Wilson was due for a change of scenery. This Hornsby emphatically denied.

There is more than a suspicion, according to authorities, that four members of the club, Hack Wilson, Gabby Hartnett, Kiki Cuyler and Charley Grimm, view Hornsby's nomination with some hostility. They form the club's backbone. Runs were eagerly awaiting developments, if any, on this matter.

Hornsby said he hadn't been given any official notice as yet that he has been named to succeed McCarthy. The heavy-hitting second baseman, however, will be summoned before owner William Wrigley, Jr., within a day or two and will be offered a two year contract, according to reports

Former Ohio State Star To Run in New Zealand

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24 — George Simpson, the national collegiate 220-yard dash champion and former Ohio State university star, plans to sail for New Zealand about December 20, with Harlow Rothert, former Stanford university football and track star, and a middle distance runner yet to be named.

Simpson, Rothert and the distance runner will give a series of exhibitions during three months.

CAMBRIDGE—Harvard varsity defeated the second team, 19 to 0, only little line on the first string team was available today as the first-string backfield was kept on the sidelines, Coach Horween being careful to take no chances of his big stars meeting with injury. Wood, Mays, Devems and White were the players kept idle.

CAMPOLO-SHARKEY FIGHT TO BE IN RED

Garden Officials May Lose Huge Sum on Latest Fistic Venture.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—Officials of Madison Square Garden are hoping for the best, but are fully prepared to take a big loss on the 15-round bout they are promoting between Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo at the Yankee stadium tomorrow night.

All efforts to arouse a long-suffering boxing public to the merits, whatever they may be, of the bout have failed and indications are the gate will not exceed the $100,000 guaranteed Sharkey.

Sharkey, who climaxed a series of disappointing performances by fouling Max Schmeling, seems to have lost all of his one-time powers as a drawing card. Campolo in the few battles he has had in this country, has gained no hold on popular imagination.

The Boston sailor, despite a lethargic training campaign, rules a 2 to 1 favorite to beat back the big Argentine.

Sharkey, who was taken ill with a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning a few days ago, was examined by physicians for the New York State Athletic Commision yesterday and pronounced physically fit.

The commission temporarily lifted the suspension placed on Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, so that Buckley could act as second for the Boston sailor on Thursday night.

BOHYER PUTS TEAM THROUGH STRENUOUS PRACTICE SESSION

Alspach, Houseworth Out with Injuries of Toledo Game.

A HARD scrimmage for members of the first and second string teams and dummy practice for the remaining individuals of the squad occupied the Harding High gridders yesterday afternoon as it spent the second day of preparation for the Galion conflict Saturday. Coach Bohyer and his aids sent the high school team through nearly two and one-half hours of hard work before sending them to the showers.

Harding presented a different looking outfit in practice yesterday than it did when Toledo Central was running roughshod over it last Saturday to win 31 to 0. The tackling was a vast improvement over that of the first game but was still under par. The blocking also looked better.

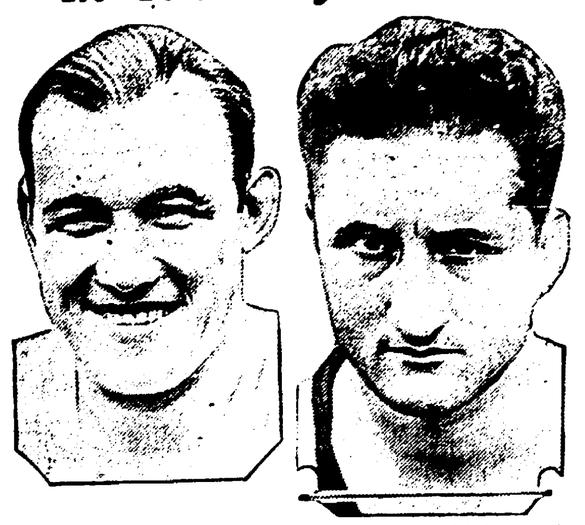
Bohyer scrimmaged two picked teams placing part of last Saturday's starting lineup on one team and part on the other. Whether or not he will switch back to the original lineup on Saturday is not certain. It is probable that at least one position will be changed. Alspach is not expected to be able to take his post at end due to a bad bump on the head in the Toledo game. He has not reported for practice either day of this week.

The only other player who is nursing an injury of any importance is Houseworth, a first string guard. He suffered a badly battered nose in the starting game but is expected to be fit for action against Galion. He is out to practice in uniform but confines his labors to following along behind the team to keep familiar with the signals.

Bohyer drilled his men yesterday in the art of executing the plays in a smooth and snappy manner. The first string team had by far the better of the argument in the practice. Morgan, Bush, Reed and Cox all ripped through the line and off the tackles for several long gains.

Bohyer is expected to put the squad through another stiff drill today. Confident that Galion will be plenty tough Saturday he is taking no chances on his team not being in condition.

In Thursday Battle



Jack Sharkey, left, the Boston sailor is aiming for a short fight and a sweet one when he battles Victorio Campolo, right, the Argentine giant tomorrow night in Yankee stadium.

Sharkey is a 2-1 favorite to win although he has not shown well in training. The promoters stand to drop a lot of loose change if advance sales are any indication of the crowd that will attend the fight.

Injuries To Keep Star From Big Opening Game

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24—Mount Union College, tackling the biggest assignment it could ask for in opening Ohio State's schedule here next Saturday, has been dealt a tough break almost on the eve of the game.

Halfback Bob McCallum will not get into the big game at Columbus because of his broken toe, Coach John Thorpe has announced. McCallum reported for practice yesterday after six days on the bench, but Thorpe does not expect to use him.

The genial Alliance coach is looking with a kindly eye on several sophomores who may line up for the first whistle. They include tackle Lorenzo Brimion, of Sebring; halfback Bob Callahan of Mingo Junction; Edd George Daly of Alliance, and halfback Lawrence Giglor of Alliance.

Oberlin In Scrimmage

Coach Butler, successor to the mourned MacEachron at Oberlin, used the wet turf as an excuse for the first hard scrimmage at his college. He placed Beattie, Melnhold, Augustine and Thomas, nearly all regulars of 1929, in the backfield, and they worked on plays for the Kenyon game at Oberlin Saturday.

University of Cincinnati went through its last daylight practice in preparation for its night game with Cedarville college in Cincinnati Saturday night. Beginning tonight Coach George Babcock plans nightly workouts until the Kentucky Wesleyan game here Friday night, Oct. 3. St. Xavier university also held its first night practice for Friday's game with Transylvania.

Poole To Captain

Allen Poole of Piqua, only two-letter winner on Denison university's team, will captain the squad against University of Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday, it has been decided. Coach Edson Ruff says he will take 22 "first string" men to Ann Arbor.

Howard Goldner of North Baltimore, all-northwest conference tackle in 1929, reported at Bowling Green, raising prospects there, but Doyt Perry of Columbus, the quarterback, wrenched his side in scrimmage so the coaches are not all smiles over the Hops college game Saturday.

Coach Willaman at Ohio State is willing to trade almost anything for able bodied ends. Dick Larkins of East Liverpool, his regular left end has a bad ankle as has Marvin Farrier of Dayton, a 1929 regular who is the leading candidate at right end.

By The Associated Press

Gus Mancuso, Cards—Hit two doubles and pair of singles against Phillies, driving in three runs and scoring three.

Fred Fitzsimmons, Giants—Held Robins to six hits and beat them easily, 8-2.

Jakie May and Ken Ash, Reds—Gave Pirates only nine hits in two games as Reds won double bill.

KLEIN SETS RECORD FOR TWO BASE HITS

Clouts 59 for Year with Phillies; Former Mark Was 52.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—Chuck Klein, Philadelphia Nationals' outfielder, has established a new National league record for two-base hit making, according to official figures announced today. Klein hit 59 two-baggers during the season.

The old record was 56 and was made by Ed Delahanty of the Philadelphia Nationals in 1899. Johnny Frederick of the Brooklyn Robins set a new modern record of 52 in 1928.

Klein also established a new all-time major league ercord in getting 42 assists from the outfield. The old outfield assist record was 39 made by Harry Niles of the St. Louis Browns in 1906, and equalled by Mike Mitchell of the Cincinnati Reds in 1907.

1930 Grid Rule Explanations

ANSWERS FOR YESTERDAY

1. Each team is allowed three times out of two minutes duration each during each half of the game. Thereafter unless purpose is to remove a player such a request may be granted with a penalty of 5 yards to offending team. Down and point to be gained remain the same.

2. Penalty for illegal delay of the game for either team is: offensive team, 5 yards down and point to be gained remaining the same; defensive, loss of five yards scrimmage following to be first down.

3. An incoming substitute must report to either the referee or the umpire.

4. A substitution is considered complete when the team captain has given his acceptance of the substitution.

5. The only method whereby an incoming substitute may change the position of players before play starts is through the referee.

QUESTIONS

1. What is the penalty for offside on a kickoff?

2. What is penalty for kickoff out of bounds twice?

3. It is fourth down. Team A goes into punt formation and throws long forward pass, intercepted by team B player. Player B runs ball back 20 yards and fumbles and ball strikes ground. Recovered by A team who scores touchdown. Does touchdown count?

4. How many men must there be on the offensive line of scrimmage?

Ed. Kawal Declared Ineligible for Play at Illinois.

By United Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 24—Edward J. Kawal, center of the University of Illinois football team, has been declared ineligible for further competition because he competed, as an amateur, for various teams in and around Chicago during the winter of 1927-28, it was announced today.

This football season will be the fifth for the Notre Dame coaching system at North Carolina. The team, under Chuck Collins, scored 346 points last year.

Post Season Minor League Series Even

By The Associated Press

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 24—The post-season series between Springfield of the central league and Danville of the three-eye league was an even affair today at two victories each.

The Three-Eye champions drew up with the Blue Sox last night with a four-run rally in the eighth inning that brought them a 6 to 4 triumph. Minogue, Springfield hurler, was pounded for 10 hits.

It was Danville's second straight victory. The Central leaguers won the first two games at Springfield. They play here again tonight.

JONES RETAINS LEAD IN RACE FOR TITLE; 1929 CHAMP BEATEN

Bobby Paired with Crack Canadian Golfer in First Match Play.

By The Associated Press

MERION CRICKET CLUB, ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 24—With the champion eliminated, a carry-over play-off and the list of pairings dotted with five members of the "bye family," utter strangers to national golf competition, the 34th annual amateur championship reached the match play stage today.

When darkness settled over the Merion course at the close of the two-day qualifying test, making further golf out of the question, all was chaos. Only 24 of the 168 starters had settled their right beyond dispute to places among the select. A play-off among 11 players tied at 155 proved only partially successful. The list of qualifiers was increased to 27 but six men remained seeking five places.

As a result of this indefinite early evening test the pairings were announced with the unidentified bye boys scattered through it, today's play giving the byes identities.

155 Strokes Too Many

This was the first time in the 34 years of the championship that a 36-hole total of 155 was not good enough to enter the match play contests without additional effort.

The leading casualty was Harrison R. Johnston, the defending champion. After a distressing 83 in his first round Jimmy came back with a good 73 in the second for a 36-hole total of 156, just one shot too many to enter the play-off.

The U. S. G. A. ranking was correct in one particular. It placed Robert T. Jones, No. 1, and he justified the faith by winning the medal, no novelty for him, with a score of 142 made up of scores of 69-73. Bob had a chance to make a new qualifying record but he slipped a stroke over par on the two finishing holes.

Seeded Stars Beaten

Of the seeded stars in addition to Johnston, Cyril J. H. Tolley, former British amateur champion, and Don K. Moe, Walker cup player, eighth and ninth on the list, fell by the wayside and Jess Sweetser, No. 10 had to enter the play-off.

The pairings brought an international battle at the outset when Bobby Jones drew C. Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur champion, as his opponent.

George Von Elm started with Charles D. Hunter, Jr., and George Voigt drew Lester Bolstad, former Big Ten star. John Lehman western amateur champion, was bracketed with Phil Perkins, former British champion, now a New Yorker. Two far westerners,

THE GUMPS — BY SIDNEY SMITH

THESE ARE ANXIOUS DAYS FOR THE WIDOW SEVEN MORE DAYS AND IT WILL ALL BE OVER — THE WEDDING WILL TAKE PLACE AND SHE WILL BE RICH BEYOND THE WILDEST DREAM — SHE IS WORRIED ABOUT CARLOS — HE'S BEEN DRINKING HEAVILY — WILL HE HOLD HIS TONGUE? WHAT IF HE TOLD ALL — AND THE WEDDING WAS CALLED OFF AT THE LAST MINUTE — SHE SHUDDERS AT THE THOUGHT —
I'LL MAKE IT THE FINEST WEDDING THAT EVER TOOK PLACE - IF IT COSTS A MILLION—
AND NOW MY FRIENDS — THE REAL TREAT OF THE EVENING — YOU HAVE FINISHED WITH YOUR DINNER — NOW- LET YOUR EYES FEAST ON THAT THE GREAT MOGUL DIAMOND — MADE INTO A PENDANT — PERHAPS THE FINEST AND MOST PERFECT COLLECTION OF STONES IN THE WORLD —
AND THIS WILL BE MY WEDDING GIFT TO MY BRIDE — I WILL PRESENT IT TO HER ON THE DAY OF OUR MARRIAGE — THE RAREST TO THE FAIREST — CLAP!! CLAP CLAP!

POLLY AND HER PALS — BY CLIFF STERRETT

WHEN MISS SMYTHE SAYS "CURTSEY" MISS SMYTHE MEANS "CURTSEY!"
WELL, MISS SMYTHE. HOW ARE YOU AND YOUR NEW PUPIL, PROGRESSING?
OH! DELIGHTFULLY MRS. MEEK. WE'RE GOING TO GET ALONG LIKE TWO, ER, UH, TWO,- -- STRANGE BULL-DAWGS!

KRAZY KAT — BY HERRIMAN

SHALL WE BE GENTLE WITH OUR BENEFICIS, OR SHALL WE BE ROUGH? WE MUST DECIDE — ME, I'M IN FAVOR OF BEING ROUGH" !!!
THAT'S THE WAY TO HANDLE THEM — ROUGH !!!
IF THEY WERE GENTLE MEN WE COULD HANDLE THEM GENTLE, BUT — WOT CAN I DO TO HELP ASSIST IF ANY, MRS. KWEEK WEEK?
WHAT EVER ELSE "MR. KUKU" IS, HE'S A GENTLMAN IGNATZ ALSO.
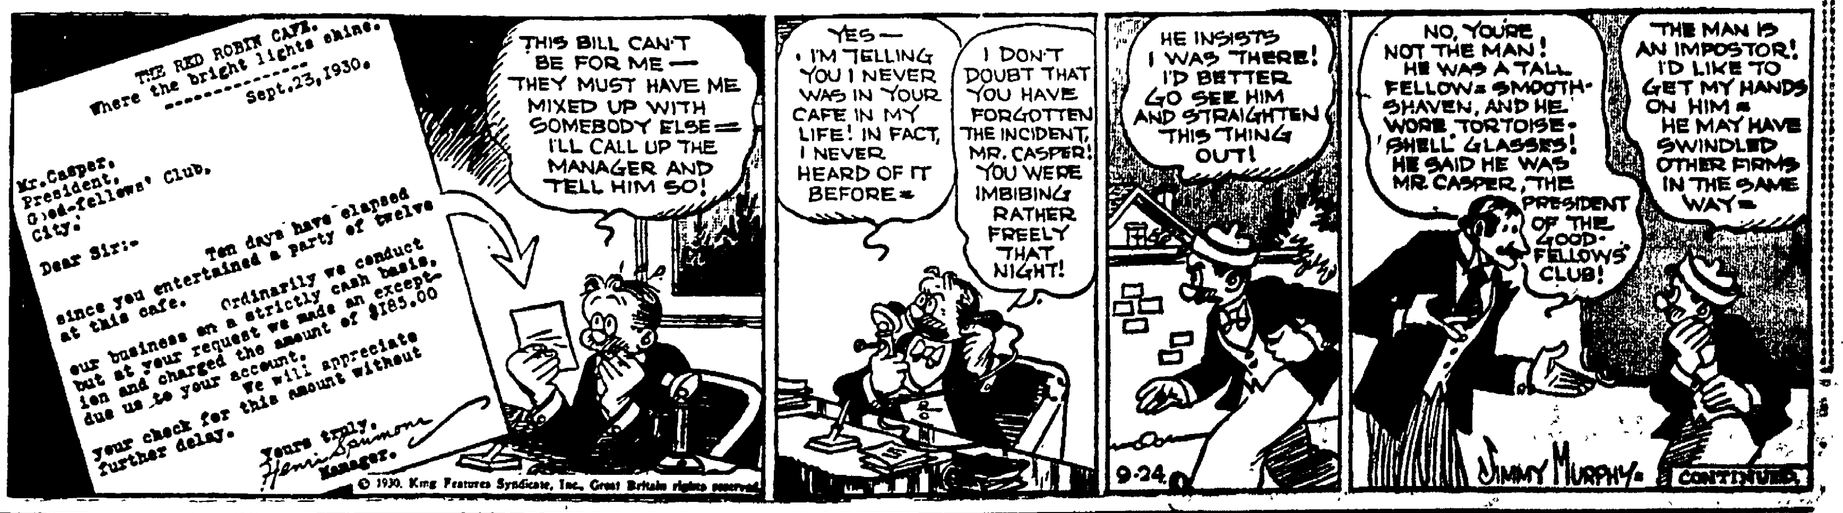
JOSE CUERVO.

TOOTS AND CASPER — BY JIMMY MURPHY



THE RED ROBIN CAFE. Where the bright lights shine. Sept.23,1930.
Mr.Casper, President, Good-fellows' Club. City.
Dear Sir:- Ten days have elapsed since you entertained a party of twelve at this cafe. Ordinarily we conduct our business on a strictly cash basis, but at your request we made an exception and charged the amount of $185.00 due us to your account. We will appreciate your check for this amount without further delay.
Yours truly, Henri Spumoni Manager.
© 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.
THIS BILL CAN'T BE FOR ME — THEY MUST HAVE ME MIXED UP WITH SOMEBODY ELSE — I'LL CALL UP THE MANAGER AND TELL HIM SO!
YES — I'M TELLING YOU I NEVER WAS IN YOUR CAFE IN MY LIFE! IN FACT, I NEVER HEARD OF IT BEFORE —
I DON'T DOUBT THAT YOU HAVE FORGOTTEN THE INCIDENT, MR. CASPER! YOU WERE IMBIBING RATHER FREELY THAT NIGHT!
HE INSISTS I WAS THERE! I'D BETTER GO SEE HIM AND STRAIGHTEN THIS THING OUT!
NO, YOU'RE NOT THE MAN! HE WAS A TALL FELLOW- SMOOTH-SHAVEN, AND HE WORE TORTOISE-SHELL GLASSES! HE SAID HE WAS MR. CASPER, THE PRESIDENT OF THE GOOD-FELLOWS' CLUB!
THE MAN IS AN IMPOSTOR! I'D LIKE TO GET MY HANDS ON HIM - HE MAY HAVE SWINDLED OTHER FIRMS IN THE SAME WAY -

THE COPS ARE SURE TO PICK YOU UP ON SUSPICION WHEN THEY FORCE YOU TO TELL ALL YOU KNOW SPILL THE BEANS - YOU UNDERSTAND·
I GOT YA CHIEF -
I'M GIVING YOU THE RIGHT DOPE, CHIEF - I WAS SILKY'S PAL, BUT HE DOUBLE-CROSSED ME - HE'S GONE TO MEXICO - HE CALLS HIMSELF HERBERT HEMMIG - AND I ONLY HOPE YOU NAB HIM AND SEND HIM UP FOR LIFE -
ONE OF HIS PALS BETRAYED HIM - SNEAG FLED TO MEXICO, BUT HE HASN'T ESCAPED - WE HAVE NOTIFIED THE POLICE DEPARTMENT THERE, AND THEY--
I HEARD THE CHIEF SAYING THAT CROOK WAS IN MEXICO - I HOPE THE CHIEF IS RIGHT - BUT I HAVE A HUNCH THE CHIEF IS WRONG AN' THAT SNEAG IS STILL HIDING AROUND HERE -

REPORT ON RADIUM MALADY PREPARED

Will Show Extent of Disease Contracted by Factory Workers.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—An inquiry in which 300 watch factory workers were examined to determine the extent of a new disease caused by radium rays has just been completed by the U. S. public health service. The findings are being rechecked by laboratory specialists and will be published soon.

The report is regarded in medical and industrial circles as of great importance. It will reveal for the first time the number of persons suffering from "radium poisoning" as a result of exposure to radium rays in factories. Radium is used in watch plants to paint luminous dials.

Nationwide attention was drawn to this several years ago when several women workers died from effects of the poisoning. A number of other workers were stricken.

LUTHERANS TO FORM NEW DISTRICT TODAY

Rev. J. W. Schillinger and Carleton Case of Marion Attend Columbus Session.

Rev. J. W. Schillinger, pastor of Emanuel's Lutheran church and Carleton Case, lay delegate, are in Columbus today and Thursday attending an organization meeting of the Ohio District of the American Lutheran church. The merger of three Lutheran synods which took place in Toledo last August will be completed today when approximately 300 Ohio Lutheran ministers meet to organize the Ohio district, an International News Service report said today.

The new group, which will be made up of Ohio congregations only, will include members which have been heretofore affiliated with the synods of other states. It is predicted that this new district about to be formed will be the strongest of the 11 districts of the American Lutheran church.

Rev. Schillinger was on a committee to investigate the merger plans at the meeting in August.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Cranberries, the annual forerunner of the Thanksgiving season, sailed into Marion market circles this morning at the surprisingly low figure of 20 cents a pound. They are new arrivals from New England states and are to be on the market until after Christmas.

Usually the first crates of cranberries command 25 and 30 cents a pound, but this year the opening price was set at 20 cents.

Sweet potatoes, not the true Jerseys but nearly as desirable, are still cheaper this morning, selling as low as six pounds for 25 cents, or dangerously near the price of the Irish cobblers.

Honey ball melons and Persian melons are off the list now in favor of homegrown varieties.

Leaf lettuce from Marion and Delaware counties is a popular item this week.

UNIVERSITY OPENS FRESHMAN WEEK

Approximately 2,500 New O. S. U. Students Greeted; Radio Program Tonight.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24— The fourth annual "freshman week" opened today at Ohio State university. During the next five days, officials and employes of the university will take part in a program designed to acquaint approximately 2,500 freshmen with the various activities of this educational institution.

This program is preliminary to the regular fall opening at O. S. U. next Monday.

President G. W. Rightmire and other university officials will address parents of the freshmen at a conference this afternoon. A reception will be held at 5 p. m.

Governor Myers Y. Cooper and President Rightmire are scheduled to speak tonight at the Ohio Stadium when the freshmen will be formally welcomed to the university. The program will be radiocast from station WEAO, starting at 7:30 p. m.

Epworth League To Pick New President

The senior Epworth League of Epworth M. E. church met last night at the home of Mrs. R. W. Kauble of 239 Clover avenue to arrange for a new league president to replace Albert L. Slack who has enrolled as a student at Ohio Wesleyan university. Dr. C. E. Turley, R. W. Kauble, Miss Kathryn Gelbaugh and Miss Helen Connolly were appointed a nominating committee.

The meeting was devoted to a discussion of league work. Refreshments were served in a social hour.

WHEAT DROPS IN SALES RUSH

Rallies Before Day's Close After Hitting Lowest Price Since 1907.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—Big selling to stop losses of eastern holders who had bought at higher prices carried wheat down to fresh low records late today. September delivery of wheat here dropped to 76¾, the bottom most level reached since January, 1907, a fall outdoing the severe tumble which, culminating in July, 1914, was followed by war market advances to as high as 2.49¾.

Rye and oats today also established new bottom-price records as a result of stop-loss selling for tired-out holders, with corn likewise declining sharply in the last half of the day owing to sympathy with weakness of other cereals.

Wheat rallied abruptly about 2¾ cents just before the final gong, and closed feverish, varying from ¼ cents lower than yesterday's finish to ½c net advance. Corn recovered, too, closing ¼ to ¾ cents up, with oats at ¼ cents off to ¼c gain, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25c.

ARRESTED ON WARRANT

Delbert Thrush, 40, of 515½ Silver street, was placed under arrest today by Acting Police Chief Ira Shrock on a warrant charging illegal possession of liquor. He was arrested as the result of a raid Sunday night on 515½ Silver street in which a small quantity of alleged liquor was confiscated and LeRoy Thrush, 17, was arrested. The youth has not been charged with any offense as yet. The elder Thrush will be arraigned in municipal court.

COURT NEWS

Files Petition

Grace L. Ackerman today filed suit in common pleas court for divorce from Harry J. Ackerman on grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. She also asked an injunction which was granted today to restrain the defendant from selling a bakery of which he is the owner while the divorce action is pending. They were married at Galion on Jan. 21, 1912, and have one child. George T. Geran is attorney for the plaintiff.

Gets Injunction

An injunction to restrain the defendant from annoying her was granted the plaintiff today in common pleas court in the divorce action of Jessie Verity against Harvey E. Verity. The injunction also prohibited the defendant from disposing of his property. L. E. Myers is attorney for the plaintiff and J. H. Eymon is counsel for the defendant.

Federal Educators Not in Favor of "Dunce Cap"

By International News Service

WASHINGTON—The federal office of education has acted to rid the schoolroom of the figurative "dunce cap." Some schools in remote rural sections are said to still use the pasteboard cone-shaped hats to impress upon the wearers they are careless with their lessons or are "dumb."

Elsie H. Martens of California, has charge of the office's special department that will prepare a special training course for children who are mentally deficient or backward.

This course will be offered to the local school authorities.

CALDWELL NAMED LEGION COMMANDER

Local Post Holds Election; Delegates To Leave for Convention Sunday.

Clyde C. Caldwell was elected commander at the meeting of Bird-McGinnis post No. 162, American Legion, last night at the Legion dugout. Other officers elected were William E. Mack, first vice commander, Floyd G. Browne, second vice commander, James W. Llewellyn adjutant, Ralph E. Grubaugh, treasurer, Charles H. Howard, chaplain, and Donald MacDonald, sergeant-at-arms. These officers will be installed at the next meeting Oct. 14.

J. W. Llwellyn, delegate, T. E. Kinnear, Clarence Bowe and Ralph Hull will leave Sunday for Boston where they will attend the national Legion convention Oct. 6, 7, 8 and 9. They will go to Boston by way of Canada and return home through New York, Philadelphia and Washington. Mr. Kinnear will stay in Washington where he will attend a reunion of the First division.

During the meeting Sam Wooley entertained with a sleight of hand performance.
